WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. — The frank statement by Secretary of the Navy Knox that American warships are convoying lend-lease goods reverberated in Congress today, with administration supporters defending convoying and foes assailing it as another step toward war.

While the naval secretary declined to divulge details of the navy's plan of protection, observers assumed that lend-lease arms are being convoyed to Iceland, and transported from there to Britain under escort of British warships.

The convoy system also may mean, observers said, that American destroyers and cruisers are escorting ships on the long voyage around Africa and to the Red Sea to supply middle east forces.

Using "All Means"

Knox emphasized that the navy is using "all means" to get aid to Great Britain, but declined to discuss methods at length. He pointed out that since the last world war "many more" methods of protecting merchant ships than mere convoys have been devised.

Which is correct, Grant street or Grant avenue? Someone called Pa Newc and presented the aforementioned query this morning. After checking up with proper city authorities today, Pa Newc was informed that Grant street is proper.

Looking over the rapidly thinning daily calendar today, Pa Newc learned that Christmas is only 97 days away. Surprised?

Trees are not only turning color early, but Pa Newc notes that in some sections of the city the leaves are already dropping from the trees in some quantities. It will not be long until they will come fluttering down in large numbers.

LONDON, Sept. 18. — Swarms of British bombers hammered Germany's industrial Rhineland for the second successive time last night and early today after pasting military objectives in Nazi-occupied France yesterday afternoon in a gigantic daylight attack.

same region, which left great fires burning at Karlsruhe and other strategic centers.

Like the previous raid, last night's attack centered on Karlsruhe. Flying weather was poor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. — The United States navy today defied Axis threats to sink lend-lease cargo by conveying merchant ships en route to Great Britain as fast as destroyers searched the Pacific to determine whether a German raider is preying on anti-Axis commerce.

The new steps in the far-flung plan to insure arms reaching both Britain and Russia are being strengthened by secret methods of protecting commerce.

Brushing aside charges of non-interventionists in congress that conveying of merchant ships breaks a pledge given when the lend-lease program was adopted and is an act of war, high administration officials emphasized their determination to see that vital munitions and arms reach the nations fighting Hitler.

Search Indian Mound Found Near Bradford

(International News Service)

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 18. — Archaeologists of the Pennsylvania Historical society were busy engaged today in sifting the dirt of an Indian mound on the Earl Smith farm, about 18 miles west of here on the Banks of the Allegheny river.

Their finding to date indicate that 16 burials and 200 relics nine centuries old will be unearthed. In charge of the digging is Edmund Carpenter of Rochester, grandson of a famed archeologist who was a member of the party that discovered the tomb of King Tutankhamen. The mound is east of Pennsylvvania's small Indian reservation where Chief Cornplanter and many of his fellow tribesmen rest under the sod that eventually will be covered by the impounded waters of the $35,000,000 Kinzua dam.

Carpenter reported that three complete skeletons were unearthed recently in cist number one. Much of the improvised tomb of rough slabs of stone has not been touched as yet.

First U.S. Plane Shipment Has Reached Russia

Washington Quarters Disclose First American-Made Planes Arrive In Soviet

ROUTE FOLLOWED IS NOT REVEALED

First Arrivals To Be Followed By Steady Flow Of U. S. And British Planes

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.

— Responsible quarters in Washington today disclosed that the first consignment of American-made warplanes has arrived in Soviet Russia.

Representing one of the most important steps yet taken by the United States government to aid Soviet Russia, arrival of this first consignment is expected to be followed by a steady flow of hundreds of warplanes from both this country and Great Britain.

Details Secret

Details concerning the number and type of planes in this first consignment is considered a military secret which cannot be made public. Whether the American-made planes have gone into action on the Russian front against the German Luftwaffe could not be ascertained, but if not, it is expected they soon will be given their baptism of fire by Soviet pilots.

A small group of American aviation mechanics also is reported to have arrived in Russia to instruct the Soviet air force ground crews in the handling of the American-made planes.

The route by which the planes were shipped into the Soviet union is a defense secret. However, it is thought possible that they may have been flown in from British territory in the near east. Large numbers of American-made planes have been shipped to the British forces in Africa and the near east, and some of these may have been diverted to Russia.

Urgent Need

Fighting planes are now to be among the most urgent needs of Soviet Russia at the present time. The need for immediate delivery of this type of aircraft was stressed by the Soviet government in its recent appeal to the United States and Great Britain for increased aid.

New Lend-Lease Fund Desired

President To Ask Big Sum

Special Message To Be Heard In Congress During Afternoon

U. S. EXTENDS NEW AID TO RUSSIANS

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—While fighting ships of the U. S. Navy ranged the North Atlantic with orders to convoy all lend-lease ships and to "shoot first" in their protection, President Roosevelt today drafted a demand on congress for still another $6,000,000,000 to supply Great Britain and her Allies with implements of war to insure ultimate and total victory over Hitlerism.

A special message was headed for both the senate and house, declaring it to be the measured judgment of the commander-in-chief that approximately $5,985,000,000 should be added immediately to the original $7,000,000,000 of lend-lease aid voted to supply the British and Allies with planes, tanks, ships, guns, ammunition and food.

Arrangements had been made to have the president's message read to both houses of congress shortly after 12 o'clock noon (EST). Of the first $7,000,000,000, more than $6,000,000,000 have been allocated and $383,000,000 actually has been spent. The president was expected to point out that in anticipation of a war which might run into 1943 or later it is essential to make long range commitments immediately.

To Defend Efforts
It was anticipated further that Mr. Roosevelt would sharply defend lend-lease efforts to date in asking for the additional huge sum. Already, the president has taken exception to criticism of his report last Monday on the first five months of British aid operations pointing out that 99 percent of the war goods needed by the Nazi foe must be manufactured from scratch and cannot be bought ready made like goods from the shelves of a department store.

He was expected to report that factories in the process of being retooled for the past eight months are only now coming into full production. Meanwhile, through another channel, the Washington government made $50,000,000 immediately available to Soviet Russia for the quick purchase of war supplies from American factories. Thus far, the administration has taken the position that Russia is not eligible for lend-lease aid.

To Aid Russia
Acting on a suggestion of President Roosevelt, Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones contracted to buy through the Soviet controlled Amtorg Trading Corporation $100,000 worth of critically needed manganese, chromite, asbestos and platinum, agreeing to advance to the Soviet up to $50,000,000 ahead of actual delivery. Amtorg was immediately given $10,000,000 and the remainder will be advanced during the next six weeks.

The president specifically instructed Jones that he should make "proper allowance" for dislocation of transportation and of their productive facilities in requiring Russia to lay the $100,000,000 worth of manganese, and other materials down in American ports.

This was believed to be only a forerunner of the financial assistance that Washington stands ready to furnish Moscow so long as the Red armies continue their stand against the concentrated Nazi thrust.

Jones recently indicated that Russia's credit in the United States under certain conditions could run as high as $1,000,000,000.

Ickes Will Not Quit, He Says

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Petroleum Coordinator Ickes asserted today that there will be no letup in his efforts to curtail gasoline consumption on the east coast, despite a senate committee's findings that the threatened shortage was a shortage of surplus rather than supplies.

"To take off all restrictions now and yell 'come and get it' would be stupid," Ickes told a press conference.

Ickes refused to comment on the senate committee's findings or on the priority board's action in refusing to make available steel plate for a crude oil pipeline.

Ickes said he was still studying the feasibility of a pipeline to be constructed with seamless steel tubing rather than with steel plates. Ickes ridiculed reports that he contemplated resigning from his cabinet post and as petroleum coordinator and attributed the news stories to a disgruntled columnist.

EXPECT PRESIDENT TO SIGN TAX BILL TODAY

created by $1,144,600,000 by lowered exemptions and boosted rates. Exemptions for married persons are lowered from $2,000 to $1,500 and those for single persons are dropped from $800 to $750.

Huge Increases

Hitting hardest at the lower and middle brackets, the bill imposes surtaxes ranging from six percent almost at the very bottom to 77 percent at the top. These new taxes will be computed in addition to existing imposts, doubling and even tripling lower bracket payments.

The individual income taxpayer, George indicated, may escape a heavy blow in the next tax bill. He said that new sources of revenue must be explored.

"All indications are that we will have to have a bill yielding more money next year, but it cannot be stated definitely and no one can tell yet just what effect the defense program will have on business," he said.

"But based upon facts as they now exist, it is very certain that we will be called upon to provide additional taxes in 1942. The only national conclusion that can be reached is that defense expenditures will exceed similar expenditures in 1941."

Provisions Of Bill

Other essential provisions of the new record bill are:
Corporation income taxes—Increased by $1,382,100,000 by raising excess profits levies 10 percent and imposing a six percent surtax on corporate incomes of less than $25,000 a year and seven percent on greater earnings.

Inheritance, gift and capital stock taxes—Increased a total of $179,900,000 by boosted rates all along the line.

Excise, or so-called "hidden" taxes on special commodities—Increased $499,100,000 by raising present levies and imposing new ones. Commodities affected by the bill are liquors, wines, automobiles, trucks, buses and parts, tires and tubes, refrigerators, matches, playing cards, radios, phonographs and records, musical instruments, sporting goods, luggage, electric and gas appliances, photographic apparatus, electric signs, business and store machines, rubber articles, washing machines, optical equipment, electric light bulbs, jewelry, furs, and toilet preparations.

Miscellaneous taxes—Increased $247,700,000. These include new and increased taxes on admissions, cabaret bills, club dues, safe-deposit boxes, long distance telephone, cable and radio services, local telephone bills, personal transportation, a $5-a-year use tax on automobiles, and use taxes on bowling alleys, pool tables, and coin-operated devices.

In addition, the bill provides a simplified form to help the "little fellow" pay his income tax. This consists of a chart for all incomes of $3,000 a year or less, which averages exemptions and automatically gives the amount of the tax due.

The measure also creates a joint congressional-departmental committee to study ways and means of reducing governmental expenditures.

While George declined to discuss new sources of revenue, proposals have been made for a pay-roll tax, a general manufacturers' excise levy, joint returns for husbands and wives, and many luxury excise taxes.

An administrative tax bill is soon to be thrust before the house ways and means committee by the treasury, but it may not yield greatly increased revenue.

While George said that an increase in the national debt limit might well be considered in connection with the administrative bill, he added that the question definitely must be considered next winter.

RHINELAND AGAIN BOMBED BY BRITISH

complicated the Blenheim bombers that participated in the assault, which concentrated particularly on a power plant at Mazingarbe near Bethune.

R.A.F. fighter pilots representing many countries took part in the raid. One Polish pilot rammed a Messerschmitt which immediately burst into flames, while the British Spitfire manned by the Pole plunged to earth after its wings were torn off.

Details of the great fighter-bomber sweep over France were related by the air ministry in a communique which said:

Attack Power Plant

"During the afternoon two squadrons of Blenheims escorted by strong forces of fighters attacked a power plant at Mazingarbe near Bethune. Opposition from enemy anti-aircraft batteries and fighters was unable to prevent the attack.

"Bombs burst on the target and fires broke out.

"Six enemy fighters were destroyed and one Blenheim and seven of our fighters were lost. One of our fighter pilots later was rescued from the sea by the R.A.F. air-sea rescue service. Enemy fighters which attempted to interfere with the rescue were driven off by our fighter patrols and one enemy fighter was shot down.

"In the course of an offensive fighter operation later in the afternoon four enemy fighters were destroyed and six of our fighters were lost but three pilots were saved.

"During Wednesday, therefore, 11 enemy fighters were destroyed. Our losses were one Blenheim and 13 fighters with four pilots saved.

"It is now known that another enemy fighter was destroyed Tuesday, making a total of seven for that day."

NAVY SEARCHING PACIFIC FOR NAZI RAIDER IS REPORT

pressed a belief that an Axis raider is operating in the Pacific in the vicinity of the Panama Canal, a belief heightened by the fact that one Dutch ship is long overdue. Coincidentally reports persisted in Panama that an American naval vessel had sunk an Axis raider in the Pacific. The navy maintained silence on these reports.

The possibility that the first "shooting incident" by an American ship happened in the Pacific was buttressed by Knox's revelation that warships had searched islands in the vicinity of the Panama Canal to determine whether raiders or submarines are operating from bases there.

Editor's Note: U. S. naval officials at Balboa, in the Canal Zone also kept silent on reports that an American naval vessel had sunk an Axis raider in the Pacific. Admiral Frank Sadler, Balboa commandant said: "I have no news to release today on the matter."

Knox promised to "tell the world" if a raider is captured, but did not add that the navy also would proclaim sinking of an Axis ship.

With fishing gradually losing its appeal, Lawrence County's sportsmen are getting in trim for the rapidly approaching hunting season. Sportsmen and their dogs have started wending their ways into the outdoors to brush up on "points" of stalking small game, Pa Newc is informed.

Nearby residents report that the stop sign at the corner of North Crawford avenue and East Main street, is ignored by quite a few drivers. There is an occasional loud screeching of brakes caused by these people when another auto or truck appears around the corner from Main street. Safety first, please!

Although Great Britain claims to have sent hundreds of warplanes to Russia already, it is considered doubtful that this country and Britain could divert as many as 500 per month to the Soviet Union for any length of time.

However, there are indications that both governments are striving to get as many planes as possible to Russia within the next eight weeks in the hope the Soviet air force and armies will be able to hold out against the German advance until the arrival of winter weather.

Fashion Chat

By Ann McKee

I know I have a fashion treat in store for everyone who steps into my shop in the near future. Paris at its height never offered a more inspiring sight than the New York markets from which I have just returned after a busy buying spree. The new, really new silhouette and its glorious interpretations leave one breathless.

It's so relaxed, this silhouette, with its easy, flowing lines, perfectly feminine, rounded shoulders with deeper armholes, "broken" treatments that abound in color combination, easy-fitting bodices, slightly lower waists. Goodbye to fitting grief for the hard-to-fit, for it is no exaggeration to say that today's styles are as adaptable to Size 49 as to Size 14!

All fashions fall into one of two groups, and stay there....."casual" or "dress-up." And every wardrobe must make room for both, because there is a real need for both. Casual little suits, woolen dresses, sports and casual clothes to wear to war relief meetings, and on the other hand, what with war relief parties, entertainment for the boys home on relief, and just the good old feminine excuse to look like a note of cheer these trying days, the "dress-up" dress is indispensable. Here you will find a vast assortment of allure, all kinds of discreet glitter, elaborate tuckings, rich surface decoration of every kind, and intricate dressmaker designing.

Suits at last assume as much autumn importance as they ever did in the biggest "suit spring." So many occasions in which to "live" in a suit all day long. And so many SUITS! Casual two-piece ones in gay plaids or soft monotonies, with longish lines, English drapes, broad and normal shoulders, and every kind of costume ensemble, with jackets or coats over chic woolen dresses.

Hats are wonderful. Loads of feather trims, Debonair profile berets, Wimples (stuff hanging down the back to eliminate the "horn lamb" look that have necks give, now that we're wearing our hair short or up!) Hats, like everything else, are soft and "relaxed" in expression.

The Call to Colors featuring dressy winter coats ordering black-to-colored on a 50 50 basis, when it used to be 90% black, are being shown in my selections for fall.

I'm bursting with fashion news, and hope all my friends will drop in for a lookaround. Make it soon?

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

AIDING PRE-SCHOOL CHILD

In all sorts of ways, the child at home can learn the meaning of simple numbers, before going to school and while at school. Before he can count, perhaps, he observes older persons in the family counting and using numbers. If he is always treated sympathetically and has his questions answered kindly, he will try to do some counting.

After the child enters school he will have more occasion to deal with numbers and their meaning, and his parents at home can do much to help him in very simple ways. Some eager parents will want to do too much. They will want the child to go farther with numbers than he is ready to go. Some will even have him add or subtract before he begins to add or subtract at school.

Counting Bad Habit

Nearly always when they do, they encourage the child to count as he adds or subtracts. If he merely counts as he adds 5 and 7, he learns the very habits which will hamper him most for years to come. Ever so many children still add and subtract by counting when in the fifth and sixth grade, some even in high school and college. Indeed, the first thing one should look for in the child who finds arithmetic very hard is whether he counts. Nearly always he does.

In case he does, do not shame, ridicule or scold him. Just show him how to learn by heart each of the 100 addition facts, then the 100 subtraction facts, so he can use them easily, quickly, accurately the rest of his life. Whether he is in the second, fifth or tenth grade, induce him to memorize only a few of these facts at a sitting and try always to do so without a single mistake. Also urge him to master all the 100 addition facts before attacking the 100 subtraction facts.

Common sense dictates that we always try to make sure of a learning as simple as possible and to prevent confusion rather than encourage it.

JUST PANHANDLERS.

"I am blind. Please help me." Hang out a sign like that, get yourself a tin cup, a pair of goggles and a busy corner, and you have the makings of a good business. For begging is a business, according to an article in the June issue of Coronet Magazine. And from eight thousand to ten thousand and beggars in New York alone, taking in from two to ten million dollars a year, attest to that fact.

According to the magazine any ordinary, physically-fit panhandler can pick up from four to six dollars a day in New York, merely by putting in eight easy hours. You don't have to tell a professional beggar that Barnum was right!

New York's emergency relief administration project, dubbed the "Beggars' Clinic," discovered some of the tricks of the begging trade. They found "phony cripples"—men whose bodily distortions were produced by the steel braces they wore; "binkies"—men who pretended to be blind, but could not disguise their normal pupil dilations when lights were flashed in their faces. And on investigating some of the tales of woe, the clinic found panhandlers who were men of means—Blind Charley, who owned four Harlem apartment houses; sixty-five year-old Harry Thomas, who has $25,183 in the bank; Mary Martin, guide for a blind accordion player in Flatbush, who carried $1900 of currency pinned to her underwear.

Hints On Etiquette

Don't discuss personal affairs, matters and your friends in public. A crowded public place where your remarks will be overheard is not the place to talk of these things.

It's not hard to recognize the symptoms of inflation.

The only solution for the highway congestion problem is at least three or four lane highways.

Now there is talk of a shortage of natural gas. Very likely only gas yapping again.

We often wonder how long the people are going to stand the holding up of traffic for a mile or so on the highways.

As we get older we find that some things which seemed silly, if not barbaric, to us when we were young are necessary for the perpetuation of what is known as civilization.

Funerals are one of these things. When relatives and friends gather to pay their last respects to the dead and to express their sympathy to the bereft, they shed their hates, jealousies and animosities. For an hour or two they are softened by the contemplation of sorrow and mortality, not to mention the futility of strife and struggle.

Misunderstandings are suddenly liquidated, and old wounds are miraculously healed. Joe and Mary find that Bill and Liz aren't the way they thought they were at all.

While there is much talk and concern over juvenile delinquency, why not be fair to the children and edge in a few remarks on the subject of parental neglect?

Some are born free and equal and others inherit indifference.

In England people paid half of their income last year in income taxes. No doubt if we get into a shooting war in this country we will have to pay all of our income in taxes.

A man who is quite bald stepped into a drug store yesterday and asked for a bottle of hair restorer.

"Yes, sir," said the clerk, "here's a preparation that's sure to make the hair grow."

"All right," replied the optimist. "I'll take a bottle. Please wrap up a comb and brush with it."

A scientist says caterpillars have no sense. And he's right. They take as many risks in traffic as drunken drivers.

Mr. Brown—Yes. But what I am becoming rather alarmed about is the number of monuments sitting on his patients.

Good Taste

By W. B. Patent Office

"Among those unfortunates who have been crossed off the invitation lists of hostesses is a really worthy woman of my circle who has developed the reputation of being a 'bad listener.' After relating an anecdote that we have treasured and polished off we expect our informal audience to pause long enough for compliments or comment, at least. But all the time anyone is telling a story in Jane's presence, there is an impatient gleam in her eye while her mind—utterly oblivious to what we are saying—is conjuring up a tale of her own. And without giving you time, really, for a graceful peroration, she has stolen the floor. There may be a dozen of us, but Jane gets in a yarn—and too often a gull one—after each of the others. Consequently, she has had us all nervous for a long time and as no one has the nerve to correct her the poor thing has been indignantly 'dropped'—Esther.

Answer: I think you were a little too cruel to her. Perhaps the poor girl did not realize she was being selfish. Give her another chance and if she continues to be a "bad listener" drop her a few gentle hints.

Question: Please advise me on this matter of greeting servants, as I am somewhat confused. I understand that a well-bred person never "cuts" anybody no matter how humble the latter's position. Should I, when I meet a servant of my or a friend's employ, speak or should no recognition be shown in public—Albert.

Answer: Always speak to anyone you know—regardless of his or her station in life. To do otherwise is snobbish. The more aristocratic people are, the more considerate and kind they are to their employees. There is a story to the effect that George Washington not only cordially greeted the slaves on his plantation but that he raised his hat to the women.

A close friend of mine has suffered a bereavement. I shall call upon her. Must I also write her a letter of condolence?—Helen.

Answer: If you see the bereaved person and express your sympathy, you need write no letter. Should she not be "at home" when you call, you may leave your visiting card with your message of condolence written thereon. When distance prohibits such a call a letter should be sent upon receiving word of the death.

It is said kissing shortens life. Probably single life.

You can tell which side is winning. It's the one that doesn't object to reporters at the front.

So live that you never will have reason to despise such meddling, narrow-minded neighbors.

Another nice thing about virtue is that the price doesn't go up when we have a boom.

Is dumbness required to make a hero? Every time one gets the ups on a deadly villain, he is too soft-hearted to shoot.

If they desire a fair poll, let them ask people: "Do you favor doing our utmost to stop Hitler, even if it causes him to attack us?"

No big-shot politician respects the people. They are little pawns he cajoles, tricks, bribes and uses to keep himself in a job.

Tomorrow—Table Manners.

Need More Publicity In Latin America
Uncle Sam Needs Right Kind Of Boosting
Foreign Press Floods South American Cities

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—What Uncle Sam needs in Latin America is more publicity for himself in the southern republics' various midsts. It should be of the right sort, of course. The radio is all right, as far as it goes, but the stuff should be in print also.

Italians run newspapers in all important Latin-American cities. So do the Britons. They're Italian and English publications, however. The Germans have operated more competently by translating into Spanish, or, in Brazil, into Portuguese. The local, native dailies take American news services, and, in general, I think they like 'em. Still, they get Britain's Reuters, likewise, and France's Havas and Germany's D. N. B. and Transocean, which dilute our Yankee dispatches considerably.

What newspapermen call "spot news" is not so essential. The Latin-American press gets that anyway. The dope that journalists refer to as "features or special articles is what I have in mind particularly. And I wouldn't say that the establishment of Yankee dailies to the southward would be desirable. That's the Italian, English and German system, but such issues are more or less in competition with the local sheets and consequently tend to antagonize the latter. Placing of North American stuff with the southern American papers would be preferable—plus a few weeklies; reviews rather than newspapers. The dailies don't mind weeklies. In fact, they quote from 'em.

Ideal In Last War

In World War No. 1 days George Creel's Committee on Public Information (the so-called Compub) installed an ideal service. I ran it. Latin American Republic. I got no stuff to speak of from Washington, but piped up my yarns on the spot, naturally giving 'em the Yankee angle. The Spanish and Portuguese American dailies fell for those stories (I had 'em translated) wholesale. Papers like La Prensa and La Nacion devoted whole "departments" to 'em. True, La Union didn't. That was German owned. La Patria Degli Italiane did, though, for, at that time, Italy was pro-Ally.

If that had gone on, I'll guarantee that, by now, we'd have had a fine line of publicity in operation south of the Rio Grande. However, congress abolished the Compub shortly after the war's end. I'm not arguing in favor of a governmentally run news agency. Far from it. But I do contend that that particular outfit, in that particular place, at that particular juncture was the goods from Uncle Sam's standpoint.

Well, the Compub was chloroformed by congress, as related. Being out on a limb, I had to start my own review—the River Plate American—a weekly, which I've suggested as a desirability. But I had two weaknesses. One was that I hadn't, deserted by the Compub, money enough to continue having my text translated, as a result of which I had to publish in the Yankee language, limiting my circulation to the comparatively few readers who were familiar with it. Secondly, congress soon passed the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, which knocked our Latin-American trade 75 per cent on the head and skinned me out of most of my best advertisers.

I quit and came home accordingly. But if we'd show some sense we'd (Continued On Page Eight)

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1941, By The Baltimore Sun)

All Littered Up

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. IN the early excitement of the "unlimited emergency" one of the ideas that got well established was that, no matter what else one did, it was unpatriotic or destructive, or anything something pretty terrible, to question any defense expenditure. It was right to urge reduction in non-defense expenditures, but for defense there should be no limit and no criticism.

THIS was a perfectly sound conception—to up a point. Nothing could be sillier than to be niggardly in the business of national defense. Nothing could be more stupid than to endorse the necessity for arming the country and aiding England, and then to haggle over the cost. According, neither in Congress nor out was there any real opposition to granting the gigantic sums asked for by the President. They were given to him without grumbling or delay. So, too, in all probability, will be given his next request to be made this week.

HOWEVER, once granted, there would seem to be imposed upon the recipients a certain obligation to expend these huge grants of the people's money with a reasonable degree of responsibility and restraint. The truth is that they are not being expended in that way. They are being expended with a recklessness without parallel in public life. No one, not even the spenders themselves, is checking up or keeping tab. No one knows—and apparently no one cares—how huge the machine grows. Already it has become a swollen monstrosity, and it seems to be nobody's business.

THOSE who still retain a measure of financial sanity insist it is essential that non-defense expenditures be "cut to the bone." Those who have a reasonably realistic vision of what is happening under the screen of defense know that, no matter how deeply non-defense expenditures may be cut, unless someone somehow calls a halt on the utter heedlessness with which the defense organization is swelling, the effort would be trivial so far as the restoration of financial equilibrium is concerned.

NO reasonable person expects a job such as we have undertaken to be done without great waste of money. But the lack of restraint with which these funds are being dissipated, coupled with the wild rush from all parts of the country of the political, labor and radical parasites to hook in with the defense machinery, is beyond all reason. HAPPYGRAMS

by ERICH BRANDEIS

If you don't know how to entertain your week-end guests, or what to do when unexpected callers drop in, why not try Salvador Dali's method?

Dali, as you know, is the surrealist artist. He asked his guests to come to a party dressed as bad dreams.

He himself wore black tights, a satin vest, a flower behind his ear and a mandarin mustache. Senora Dali presided from a red velvet bed, wearing a horse's head. The waiters were dressed as gargoyles, and the headwaiter as a porcupine. An unclad beauty crumpled on a bed of gardenias under a wrecked auto added atmosphere to the whole thing.

If this sort of entertaining seems too complicated better stick to bridge and wienie roasts. (Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

PERELMAN EMPLOYEES ENJOY WIENER ROAST

In the reflection of a huge flickering fire at the home of Gerald C. Bailey on Union avenue, the group of campfire singers surrounding it who joyfully took advantage of the delightful evening Wednesday, was revealed to be employees of the J. P. Perelman Jewelry store of 129 East Washington street, accompanied by wives, husbands, escorts and girl friends, who had gathered to share in a gala wiener roast outing.

With "Old Man Weather" beaming his best smile and giving a command for perfect weather, the occasion proved an overwhelming success and "just what the doctor ordered."

The lovely home and grounds of the Bailey residence provided an ideal setting for festivities, and shortly after 8:30 o'clock an informal program of entertainment was launched, including a night baseball game. The teams composed of "married" and "single" couples, with the latter outfit victorious. Radio and electrically controlled victrola music added to the evenings pleasure, and soloists who contributed further to the program were Jay Sandusky, Nate Grover and Robert Carnes.

The feast of piping hot wieners and all the trimmings served at a late hour tapered off a most successful party. With last evening's results, a "repeat" is called, and it is the aim of the Perelman employees to make it an annual event. Credit is due the committee on arrangements: Gerald Bailey and Mrs. Mary Davis, who were graciously assisted by the former's mother, Mrs. C. Bailey.

County Farmers Celebrate 25 Years Of Progress

Smith-Lever Act Made Possible Agricultural Extension Service Here

McCulloch Has Been County Agent Here For Sixteen Years

Has Served Local Agricultural Extension Association In Efficient Manner

H. R. McCULLOCH

H. R. McCulloch, county agent, has served the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association in an efficient manner for the past sixteen years.

He came here in March 1925, soon after graduating from Penn State College. Prior to his appointment here, he had served in similar work in Snyder county for a period of six months.

In addition to receiving his B. S. degree at Penn State, Mr. McCulloch took a year's post graduate work at Ohio State University in 1929, receiving his master's degree in science there.

Mr. McCulloch is an untiring worker and has kept abreast of the times in his field so that he could render the best possible service to his constituents.

Better Sires Improve Herds

Bull Associations Are Formed To Aid With Breeding Program Of Dairymen

VALUED PROVEN BY ROTATION

The problem of breeding and maintaining a high producing dairy herd is one of the most difficult facing dairy farmers. In general, the most practical method is to use on their present herd a bull which comes from a high producing family, relying on the bull to raise the production of his daughters over their dams. Unfortunately, many bulls do not pass on the ability for high production which their ancestors possessed. For this reason it is desirable to keep bulls with good breeding alive until their value as breeders is determined, then use the better bulls as long as possible.

Two Bull Associations have been organized in Lawrence County to aid this breeding program. The Guernsey Bull Association has five members, while the Holstein Association started with six dairymen co-operating. Each member in these Associations makes up a single block, although in some associations two or more members act as a single block.

Each association buys as many purebred bulls as there are blocks in the group. Each block has the use of one bull for approximately two years, then the bulls are rotated, used another two years, then moved again. By the end of five years, daughters of each of the bulls have been tested, and the value of the sires as breeders can be determined. The bulls with daughters of high production are then kept in service within the association as long as they are useful.

The bull association plan has several advantages over individual ownership of bulls. The purchase of several bulls by the association provides each member with sires for six or eight years. Under individual ownership, each dairyman would have purchased two or three bulls, and since it is not practical to keep more than one bull on most farms, none of the bulls would be alive when their value is determined. Thus the members of the Association can select better bulls, prove their value and use the best, all at lower cost than through individual ownership.

BETTER STORAGE FACILITIES

Farm homes need at least two coat closets—one for good coats and wraps and one for work clothes. Better still are three coat closets, the third one for children's wraps. Often it is possible to have a children's coat closet in odd spaces that cannot be used for anything else, such as under the stairs. If this closet should be convenient to the entry most used by the children.

Law Passed By Congress In 1914 Was Passed Designed To Assist Production Problems

SERVICE HERE BEGAN IN 1916

On May 8, 1914 Congress passed the Smith-Lever Act which made possible the Agricultural Extension Service. During the early development of the Extension Service, production problems of the farm were the chief interests in the minds of those interpreting the act. This interpretation was, in its narrowest sense, that of efficient growing of crops and livestock only. The recognized conception of the Agricultural Extension Service is that of a strictly educational agency dealing with the problems of rural people, both in the field of agriculture and of home economics.

Cooperative Agricultural Extension Work between the Land Grant Colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture consists of giving information and practical instruction to rural people, both adults and youths. The purpose of this work is to teach, by practical example, farm and home practices to the end of developing and maintaining an economically sound agriculture and socially satisfying home and community life.

Pickett First Agent

The Extension Service in Lawrence county was officially started on July 15, 1916. There had been several meetings held by interested people prior to that time, but the first county agent, H. R. Pickett, started work in July of that year. In the beginning the organization was known as the Lawrence County Farm Bureau, but in 1924, the name was changed to Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association.

The local governing body is the executive committee composed of seventeen members. A president, a vice president, a secretary, and a treasurer are elected at each annual meeting. These elected officers in cooperation with the Extension Representatives appoint thirteen other men and women to complete the committee. These appointed individuals represent different lines of work in agriculture and home economics.

The Extension Service is a democratic, educational agency. Education does things to people—not for them. True education progresses slowly with the result that changes made with care will more fully meet the needs of a group of people. These changes will have a more lasting effect than will drastic changes made hurriedly without consideration of all phases of the problem. Extension education provides for the continued growth of socially minded individuals.

Extension teaching, in the beginning, was a new kind of education. It was meant to bring to the rural community, the findings of Experiment Stations as a result of experimental work conducted by those institutions. The ultimate aim of the Extension Service is to aid rural people through a strictly educational program, to achieve a more satisfactory life. It must necessarily be a broad program, and based on the farm and farm-home unit.

The Agricultural Extension Service is charged with the responsibility of aiding farmers and homemakers to see and study each problem in relation to every other problem and activity affecting rural living. Many people can see problems, but are unable to see them in their relationship to each other. The Extension Service is a rare example of democracy at work. The program of the association is developed through local leadership in each of the fifteen communities of the county and is carried out through field meetings, demonstrations, farm and home visits, correspondence, publications, etc.

Conduct Educational Program
The aims and purpose of the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association are to conduct an educational program in Lawrence county that deals with the economical production, efficient marketing, and improved living for the rural people in the county. The credit for the achievements of the association rests largely with the rural leaders—both men and women—of Lawrence county who have given generously of their time and ability, for the improvement of rural living throughout the county.

Only a start has been made during the past twenty-five years in making rural life what it can be. A continued educational program is essential in order to develop a higher appreciation of the heritage and opportunities available in rural communities. The Extension Service, with the continued assistance of local leaders, will help to develop such an appreciation. Let us look forward with anticipation to the next quarter of a century.

BEAUTIFY WITH FLOWERS

Today's arrangements of flowers vary from the amateur's attempt to sophisticated formal ones made by an expert. The ideal one for the homemaker is the one that shows the beauty of the flowers and foliage either in a loose mass or in a simple line arrangement. It is carefully balanced and without large open spaces caused by stems falling apart. Colors are well chosen with one color predominant. Flowers and container blend in color and texture with the flowers overshadowing the latter. The top line of the container is broken by interchanging leaves and blossoms that keep the attention centered on the flowers.

Home Economics Extension Representative Has Headed Work Here Three Years

MRS. FRED L. TAYLOR

Mrs. Fred L. Taylor, Home Economics Extension Representative for Lawrence County, has been on the job here for three years, during which time she has greatly expanded the scope of the work being done among the women and girls on Lawrence county farms.

Under her guidance, the ladies have learned many new wrinkles which help out economically, and she is frequently called upon for advice on Home Economics problems.

Committee Plans Yearly Program

Seventeen Leaders Comprise Extension Association Executive Committee

The Agricultural Extension Service as organized in Lawrence county is administered by an executive committee of seventeen farm and home leaders from the various sections of the county.

It is the duty of this committee to plan the yearly county-wide extension program and to outline the long time objectives of the association. This is voluntary leadership given by this committee toward the improvement of agriculture and rural living in the county through a sound and tried program of education.

The officers of the executive committee are chosen by popular vote of those attending the annual meeting of the association each year. These elected officers appoint the remainder of the committee, basing their selection on leadership and interest shown by the individuals in their respective communities. The chief interests of those being selected is also considered so that the different phases of agriculture and home making are represented on the committee.

A legume cover crop does three things: prevents erosion, adds humus and adds nitrogen to the soil.

Keeping Records On Cows Valuable

Dairy Herd Improvement Associations Weed Out Unproductive Cows

TESTER MAKES ROUNDS MONTHLY

Cows, like cars, vary in their performance. Some just loaf along, others go at a medium gait, while a few really set the pace. Yet there is no easy way to tell how well a cow will perform, for it is production throughout the months and years that counts.

Dairy Herd Improvement Associations help dairymen find out what their cows are doing. Each Association hires a tester, who visits each herd for one day every month. The tester weighs and samples the milk from each cow, then tests it for butterfat content. With these figures for one day, the tester obtains the production for the current month. Then he computes the value of the milk at current prices.

In a similar way the tester figures the amount and value of the feed consumed. These figures are placed in the herd book, so that the dairymen can tell, almost at a glance, how well each cow is doing.

Cull Out Losers
How do dairymen use these figures? The first and most obvious use is to cull from the herd those cows which are not paying their way. The production figures are useful in planning a feeding program for again like cars, high producing cows need more feed than those which are not doing as well.

Production records are of great value to many dairymen in planning a breeding program. By building their herds on the best cows, and breeding these cows to a bull backed by high production records, these men are more sure of success than are those who follow no definite plan.

The first Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Cow Testing Association as it was known at that time, was organized in Lawrence County in 1920. Harry McCurley of North Beaver township, has had his herd tested in this Association every year since its organization. Several others have continuous records for fifteen years, and continue to test because of the value of the information to them.

A good example of the value of Dairy Herd Improvement Association Work is seen in the increase from the 251 pounds of butterfat produced by the average cow in the Association during the first year of operation to 319 pounds produced in 1940, an increase of 27 per cent. This increase was made through the efforts of the dairymen themselves, who used the information from the production records as a guide in culling, breeding, feeding, and herd management. This plan of herd improvement is open to any dairymen who wishes to progress.

CRYSTALS IN JELLY
The crystals that form a grapple are cream of tartar—harmless but unpleasantly gritty. They can be prevented almost entirely by letting the juice stand in a cold place overnight, then dripping it out of the container carefully and re-straining before making it into jelly.

Volunteers Make Program Success

Unselfish Men And Women Assist In Carrying Out Educational Program

WORK OF PAST YEAR REVIEWED

During last year 130 men and 137 women gave voluntarily of their time and energy to help plan and carry out the educational program for agriculture and home economics in their communities.

The educational program conducted in each of the fifteen communities in Lawrence County by the Agricultural Extension Association does not "just happen". It is planned to meet the needs of the community. At the beginning of each year program planning meetings are held in each community. Local committees of farm leaders meet with the County Agent to discuss the farm needs in that community.

As a result of these discussions requests are made by these committees and women on the most important problems for the year. These program plans may call for meetings, the conducting of demonstrations or the distribution of bulletins or circular letters.

Arrangements are also made at this time of year for conducting junior work in the form of 4-H Clubs in the various communities. For convenience in keeping records, separate statistical reports are made of the agricultural and home economics work in the county. The following is a partial report for the agricultural work last year:

Number of demonstrations 107.
Number of meetings held 175.
Number attending these meetings 4,185.
Number of telephone calls relating to the work 1,795.
Number of office calls relating to the work 1,787.
Number of persons receiving specific assistance regarding farm problems 2,180.

HOW IS YOUR HEALTH?

In many cases the family diet could be improved simply by using more milk, and by including more of the leafy and green colored vegetables. Likewise, economical choice can be made in practically all of the important food groups. It is up to the homemaker interested in her family's health to find out what these choices are. By keeping up-to-date on food values and nutrition, by food management, and by good cooking she can provide the very best meals.

HEAVY DRINKERS
Laying hens will do better if they have plenty of fresh water in front of them at all times. For her weight a hen will consume more water than a cow.

RUST IS COSTLY
Farm machinery left in the field will rust and is not given an opportunity to wear out. A machinery shed, paint and grease will pay for themselves in a short time.

STATEMENT STILL TRUE
"You pay for a good sire whether you use him or not," is just as true today as when the statement was first made.

L. C. Dayton Is Assistant Agent

Aide To H. R. McCulloch Has Been On Job In Local Territory Over Year

L. C. DAYTON

Assisting H. R. McCulloch, County Agent, with his many duties of helping Lawrence county farmers get the best results from their farm acreage, is L. C. Dayton, of East Moody avenue.

Mr. Dayton, a graduate of Penn State College, came here in May, 1940 to take over the duties of assistant, dividing his time between Lawrence county and Mercer county.

Farm Industry One Of Biggest

Investment Of Twenty-Two Millions Represented By Lawrence County Farms

Lawrence county agriculture represents an investment in land, buildings and equipment of about $22,000,000. This investment pays a gross return to the operators of about three and one-half million dollars annually. There are approximately 2,200 farm units represented in this investment.

One hundred and twenty other industries in Lawrence county have a capital investment of $57,411,100. These same industries pay in the average year about $19,000,000 in wages.

The largest part of the Lawrence county farm income is from the sale of dairy products. Approximately 60 per cent of the total farm income is from this source. There are approximately 22,000 head of cattle in the county. The next largest source of income is from the 180,000 chickens on Lawrence county farms. This represents 15 per cent of the total farm income.

Other sources of farm income in the order of their importance are field crops, fruit, truck and greenhouse crops and other livestock.

History Of Extension Service Shows Progress Of County Association

Two Years Were Needed By Agricultural Leaders To Build Up Sentiment

J. AUDLEY BOAK FIRST PRESIDENT

H. R. Pickett, the first County Agent in Lawrence County, began his work January 15, 1916. This climaxed two years work on the part of local agricultural leaders to make the Extension Service available to the residents of this County.

At a meeting of the Lawrence County Pomona Grange held in September 1914, a committee was affected to investigate the organization of a Farm Bureau, as the Extension Association was called at that time. This committee was composed of J. A. Boak, Slippery Rock Township, A. H. Fullerton, North Beaver Township, and J. C. Brittain, Big Beaver Township.

A general meeting was held in the Court House in May, 1915, at which time an organization was affected. J. A. Boak was elected president, A. H. Fullerton, vice president; J. C. Brittain, secretary, and John Elder, treasurer. Members of the executive committee, elected at that meeting, were: County Superintendent of Schools, R. G. Leslie, R. D. Walter, N. A. Offutt and John McGee.

A. H. Fullerton served as president of the association for two years, 1918-1919. Other presidents of the association have been J. Y. Patton, Hickory township, in 1920; R. D. Walter, Mahoning township, 1921-1922; J. F. Young, Wayne township, 1923; J. W. Bronson, Little Beaver township, 1925-1931, and N. E. Sampson, Wilmington township, 1932-1939, and R. P. Peebles of Scott township has served as president in 1940 and 1941.

N. C. Dale was the second county agent. He took up the work in June, 1919, and served until May, 1925. The present agent, Harold R. McCulloch, has served continuously since that time.

Since 1937 there has been an assistant county agent dividing time between Lawrence and a neighboring county. C. D. Morley was the assistant in 1937. V. M. Marburger in 1938 and 1939. L. C. Dayton came to Lawrence county in 1940. His time is divided between Lawrence and Mercer counties.

4-H Club Work Is Junior Activity

Twenty-Five Clubs In Lawrence County Have Enrollment Of 325

FOLLOW VARIED LINE OF ENDEAVOR

Work of the extension service with boys and girls is known as 4-H club work. There were 25 of these clubs in Lawrence County this year with 325 members.

Club members demonstrate the truth of the old adage that "experience is the best teacher." These boys and girls are daily learning the best known practices under the guidance of the county extension representatives and specialists from State College.

These clubs are organized by communities. The type of work to be done by the members is decided by each group. Activities in agricultural clubs may include livestock feeding, the growing of crops, fruit or vegetables, and the care of trees and flowers. In the case of home economics, it may be clothing, food selection and preparation, meat, fruit or vegetable canning, or room improvement.

The leading method of all extension teaching is the demonstration. In this way club members are shown how to do things and are then inspired to carry out the practices demonstrated in their daily tasks of the farm and home.

The members of each club elect their own officers and conduct their own meetings. This gives the boys and girls parliamentary training and leadership guidance. Included in the program of each meeting the members repeat the 4-H club pledge, which is:

SAVE YOUR EYES
Comfort and effectiveness of lighting also depends upon the way the light is distributed. It is not enough to have light on the work you are doing, but the room as a whole should be lighted. To do this one does have to rely on ceiling fixtures. Portable lamps of the table or floor type can be used. Equip these lamps with bulbs high enough in wattage to give the quality and quantity of light required to do the task.

DISEASE-FREE CATTLE
Lawrence county cattle have been tested for tuberculosis at regular intervals since 1925. All tests since 1935 have revealed less than one-half of one per cent reaction in the 22,000 head of cattle in the county.

Boak First Head Of Farm Bureau

One Of County's Outstanding Agricultural Leaders Was First President

J. AUDLEY BOAK

When the Lawrence County Farm Bureau, the progenitor of the present Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association, was first organized in 1916, it got away to a strong start by electing a group of outstanding farm leaders on its first board of officers.

J. Audley Boak, of Slippery Rock township, later to become president of the Pennsylvania State Grange, was its first president, and helped to guide it along in the right direction and secure a strong foundation.

Home Economics Is Taught Girls

New Bedford Had First Club In County, Formed In 1925

FIFTEEN CLUBS IN LAWRENCE COUNTY

Home Economics 4-H club work has been featured in the Agricultural Extension Service of the county since 1925. The first club was organized in New Bedford. Many girls of the county have taken part in 4-H club work since then, and have made enviable records. A number of these girls now have homes of their own to which 4-H information has been applied.

Records show that the first 4-H club was organized in New Bedford. It was started in July, 1925, and was carried on for four weeks. Clothing was the subject selected by the girls. They organized and their officers were in charge of each meeting. This first club had six members.

Club work in the county has made much progress since July, 1925. During this past season, there were clubs in fifteen communities of the county with a membership of 197. Seven of these clubs selected clothing for their project work, while six clubs were interested in planning, preparing and serving meals. One club group chose canning as their project work and most of the girls earned more than the club requirement. The remaining club completed a second year of room improvement work.

Each club averaged seven meetings during the summer. In clothing, 117 garments were made. Each member had one extra problem. One group completed a sample of buttons sewed on correctly; another group exhibited a stocking correctly darned, and another learned to patch a cotton garment neatly and correctly, as well as to learn to mend a tear in a woolen fabric.

In the four food clubs, 60 girls planned, prepared, and served 132 meals. They also prepared 2,569 foods during the past three months. In the canning club, there were 17 girls enrolled. They canned approximately 380 jars of fruits and vegetables.

Three girls were enrolled in the room improvement club. Their work included the construction of pillow slips, covers for bedside tables and the refinishing of a table, as well as the making of a bedspread. One girl constructed a wardrobe with the use of orange crates as her problem. Draperies were also made for the wardrobe.

The 4-H club is a national organization. The purpose and aim of the 4-H club is to provide not only a source of information, but to help in developing the individual. It is an opportunity for the club member to develop leadership, to work cooperatively with her fellow neighbor, and to acquire recent information regarding the subject in which she is most interested. In all, the 4-H club member's motto is to "Make the Best Better," and with a national membership of 1,500,000, each club member as a citizen will do her part for her club, her community, and her country.

Extension Work Program Covers Entire County

Every Branch Of Agricultural Endeavor Benefited
By Assistance Given

VALUE OF NEW IDEAS PROVEN

The extension program is broad in its scope. The field of crop and livestock production and marketing, home making and rural living are all touched by this educational program.

Examples of agricultural accomplishments of the association during the past quarter of a century include demonstration to test improved varieties of grain crops, the use of lime and fertilizer to insure better legume crops and the growing of alfalfa.

Wool Growers Benefit
In the field of marketing, the work of the Lawrence County Co-operative Wool Growers association is an outstanding example. The Extension association gave advisory assistance in organizing this association. During the 22 years of its activities 1,322,784 pounds of wool have been marketed for the members of the association.

The extension service has interested itself in the health problems of the county. When experimental evidence proved there was a relationship between tuberculosis of cattle and that of human beings, the extension association brought that information to the public through its educational program.

Dairy Herds Improve
As a result of that program the farmers of Lawrence county set up a committee to arrange for the tuberculin testing of all cattle in the county. That test was completed and the county qualified as a modified accredited area in 1927. Retests have been made every three years since that time, and the infection has stayed under one-half of one per cent.

The same is true of Bang's disease of cattle as was true with tuberculosis. The initial test for this disease was applied last year. This elimination of disease in cattle has given all milk consumers in Lawrence county a more healthful supply of milk.

Fruit growers have always tried to produce a commodity free of disease and insect injury. This is necessary so that the consumer is able to buy an unblemished product. Spray information was first made available to fruit growers in 1925. Through the observation of disease and insect development the extension service advises growers when to spray and what materials to use so that maximum control may be secured.

Buy Better Stock
In the field of livestock production, the use of better sires has long been stressed by the extension service. This has been done for the dairy industry of the county through the organization of bull associations, and the keeping of production records so the poor producing cows can be eliminated from the herds. Sheepmen participated in this type of program by sponsoring the first pure bred ram sale to be held in Pennsylvania. Poultrymen buy better chicks and cull their flocks in order to maintain a more uniform and economical production.

Home and community grounds beautification is a phase of the extension program which adds to the pleasure of rural living. This activity as is true with other extension work is carried out through community demonstrations.

In addition to the definite program that is planned for the year much individual help is given rural and city folk regarding some phase of agricultural or home economic information. Last year there were 2,180 such requests answered.

Adults Taught Home Economics

First Resident Home Economics Worker Came To District In 1924

PROGRAM HELPS YOUTH AND ADULT

Shortly following the start of the county agent work in 1916 those of the county in charge, saw the need for home economics work as well as the agricultural work.

Following the request, home economics workers were sent out from State college. A series of foods and clothing meetings were held in several communities. Following a two or three day session, the worker would proceed to another county.

Miss Amelia Doddridge was the first home economics resident worker. Miss Doddridge arrived in September 1924 and divided her time between Lawrence, Butler and Beaver counties.

Organization of home economics groups took place resulting from contacts through home visits and a county-wide meeting held at the county fair on October 2, 1924.

The first groups to organize were: New Bedford, East Brook, Edinburg, Mahoning Valley, South New Castle, New Galilee, and Mt. Hope; and were the pioneers in home economics extension activities.

Full Time Worker
Demand for home economics work still continued until in September 1935 Miss Mary Vogle was placed in the county as full-time worker. The home economics program today includes work in all communities of the county. Beside 4-H club work, which is a major part of the activity during the summer, there is an adult program.

There were adult groups in Big Beaver, Hickory, Scott, Mahoning, Wayne, Neshannock, North Beaver, Slippery Rock, Pulaski, Wilmington, and Washington, townships during the past year. Two hundred and eighteen women were regular attendants of these meetings.

The program requested by the women included foods work. Phases of nutrition involved menu planning, food selection and preparation, as well as food purchasing. Twenty-two food demonstrations were held with 228 in attendance. Individual assistance was given to 73 persons. Including all foods work 343 persons were contacted during the past year.

Clothing work includes problems of selection and construction as well as renovation and remodeling of last year's garments. Six women remodeled their husbands' suits into suits for themselves proving an accomplishment for them. Consumer problems when purchasing clothing involved careful study.

In clothing work this past year, there were 44 adult demonstrations held with an attendance of 420 and 41 persons received individual assistance with their clothing problems. In all clothing work 687 persons were contacted.

The home management phase of extension work included interest regarding "stretching the dollar" in the study of home accounts and the purchase of household equipment. Interior decoration problems arose as well as the care and repair of furniture.

Including all phases of home management work 35 demonstrations were held and individual assistance was requested by 126 persons. Four hundred and two persons asked for assistance regarding some phase of home management. The aim of home economics extension is to provide educational information through individual contact, demonstrations, and meetings.

Erosion Work Done In County Pays Benefits

Demonstrations Are Conducted On County Farms To Keep "Farms At Home"

PREVENTION TESTS ARE CARRIED OUT

Soil is the basis of all agriculture; it is necessary for all human existence. Crops are planted and harvested in the same soil year after year, yet the crops remove very little of the soil itself. The application of rather small amounts of lime, manure and fertilizer, and the plowing down of good sods should maintain the fertility of most soils without unusual expense.

Yet many soils receiving this treatment are raising poorer crops than they were 50 years ago. Erosion, or soil washing, is removing topsoil much faster than the crops are removing plant food, and the remaining topsoil is unable to support a good crop. Much of the fertilizer which is added is washed away, and goes down the creek.

Many farmers have long recognized this problem, and have planted their steeper slopes to forest trees or turned them into pastures. Some, however, have not recognized the danger of erosion, or do not realize that it can be controlled on crop land.

Many Co-operating
Many Lawrence county farmers are following practices which keep their farms at home. They do not plow their steeper fields more often than necessary, keeping these slopes in hay. They follow rotations which maintain plenty of organic matter in the soil. They plant rye grass in the last cultivation of corn, so that the ground is covered throughout the winter.

On many farms in Lawrence county these practices do not control erosion as well as it can be controlled. Many farmers are finding that strip cropping is a practical means of control. Extension demonstrations to show the value of strips are being conducted with the co-operation of the following men: J. V. Aiken & Sons, Perry township; A. F. Arnold, Little Beaver township; Howard Glenn and R. J. Drake, Scott township; McElwain brothers, Slippery Rock township; John Benson and Guy Fullerton, North Beaver township; Charles Patton, Hickory township; and W. H. McCullough, Big Beaver township.

Strip Cropping Shown
The use of strip cropping on the J. V. Aiken and Sons farm illustrates this method of operation. A level line around the hill was laid out and was used as a base line from which the other strips were measured. These strips were 80 feet wide, and were uniform in width from end to end. Mr. Aiken planted corn in alternating strips, leaving the rest of the field in hay. The normal rotation followed, keeping hay or other close growing crop between the strips of crops which wash easily.

This method reduces erosion to a minimum, because if water gathers on a corn strip and starts to wash, it is stopped as soon as it reaches the hay. While strip cropping seems strange to many who are accustomed to large fields in a single crop, most farmers who try strips like them. Longer rows are often possible, and less power is required because all field work is done on the level.

In addition to the demonstration co-operators listed above the Extension Service has assisted many others in establishing strips on their farms. Are you doing all you can to keep your farm at home?

Crescent Theatre Is Opened Today

Mahoningtown Motion Picture House Streamlined In Every Feature

CLOSE TO $30,000 IMPROVEMENTS MADE

Streamlined to the nth degree from top to bottom, the Crescent theatre, corner Liberty street and Madison avenue, was re-opened this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The seventh ward motion picture house, which was almost completely demolished by fire on May 4, today ranks as one of the most modernly equipped theatres in the district.

The management has spent close to $30,000 equipping the theatre. Improvements include 440 new seats, new floor covering, complete modern projection room, new screen, new heating and cooling system, a new RCA sound system, and a winter and summer air conditioning plant.

In addition, the auditorium has been arranged as acoustically perfect as possible. The interior has been beautifully painted and deco-

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as lively as a youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The management did not leave a stone unturned in its efforts to give the community the finest movie house in the history of Mahoningtown.

Particular stress has been placed on the seating arrangement, the sound system and acoustics.

Two refrigerators, drinking fountains and fully equipped ladies' and men's rest rooms are among the improvements.

In the foyer, fluorescent lighting further enhances the beauty of the theatre.

Manager Louis Perretta today said that the theatre will be opened daily at 5:30 o'clock. The box office will close nightly at 9:30 o'clock.

"As in the past, the Crescent will present the finest motion pictures available. We have contracts to secure pictures from Twentieth Century-Fox, Metro Goldwyn Mayer, Warner, Columbia, RKO and United Artists," Perretta said.

The building is a tribute to the community, one that stands out majestically.

which hordes of unnecessary people are being loaded on the bloated defense pay rolls is without precedent. It far exceeds anything that happened during the war twenty years ago. Washington is choked as it never was before. The pay-rollers, with no available space left here, are spreading out into nearby cities and towns. And their number grows every week.

IN another year there literally will be many thousands more jobholders in "defense work" than there are today. And no one knows how many there are now. Naturally, the President cannot keep track of them or be concerned about them. But no one else, either. It just isn't anybody's job to check up or say when the limit has been reached, or if there is a limit. There has never been anything like this. If the American people were not so numb and inert; if the days were not so full of world-shaking events; if the Washington confusion were not so thick and the radio speeches so soothing, there might be a real popular protest over what is happening here.

AS things are, the newspapers find it physically and intellectually impossible adequately to present situations such as this and at the same time even partially to cope with the job of presenting and commenting upon the other greatly accelerated and sensational news with which they are daily overwhelmed. In addition, there is that idea that, the interests of defense, all such things should be overlooked—that to point out these excesses might retard the program; that to stress them is "uncooperative"; even to mention them is in bad taste.

ALL of which is bosh. If someone does not mention them—and continuously—our lost sense of proportion will never be regained. If, somehow, restraint is not imposed, this defense organization will be smothered under its own weight. It is rapidly reaching the swollen stage now when so many people are doing the same thing that often everybody has forgotten why and for whom or for what it is being done. Soon or late there will be a Congressional investigation, and the resulting snarl will be very bad indeed. The reasons there have been no move in this direction to date are: First, because the facts are just beginning to be realized; second, because so many members of Congress have been busy placing their friends, relatives and constituents on the defense pay rolls.

What's What At A Glance

have a Pan-America that would be a caution to totalitarians.

Rubber to Burn

For instance, glance in the list of geographical names in Webster's dictionary and locate the city of Belem (also called Para), Brazil. Note that it's described as "formerly a great rubber-exporting port." Today we're halfway at war with Japan, because Nippon's liable to grab the Dutch East Indies, and the Dutch East Indies are the only place on earth that we can get raw rubber from.

Why, there's rubber to burn, up the Amazon, past Belem.

And, if we'd develop it, what a corking good source it would provide for us, not only of material for automobile tires, but of reciprocal trade tinkering with that part of Latin America.

That's just one illustration, among about 1,000,000.

Isn't it obvious that, from here to Cape Horn and back again, we need a lot of reciprocal publicity?

The 1942 line comprises six models and a total of 31 body styles, which include the Royal, built for both six and eight passengers; Windsor, Saratoga, New Yorker, Crown Imperial, and town and country (station wagon).

While the wheelbases of the various models have not been increased, the cars are wider and lower. There is more elbow room and the riding qualities have been considerably improved by the adoption of a softer seat cushion.

Local Chrysler distributor entertains twenty-two sub-dealers and salesmen at Field Club. All agreed that the new Chrysler for '42 was a "Thunderbolt."

Seven different body styles were shown. The 1942 line comprises six models and a total of 31 body styles.

"It's a 'Thunderbolt,'" says Chrysler of its 1942 car. This view shows a striking resemblance to the "Thunderbolt" that toured the country in caravans this year and won the admiration of some six and one half million persons.

Performance, appearance, economy and longevity all have been improved in the new Chrysler line. Important fundamental changes in design, plus a very large number of refinements have brought this about.

Legion Approves A. E. F. If Needed

Convention At Milwaukee Urges Limitations On Use Of Troops Be Lifted

(International News Service) MILWAUKEE, Sept. 18. — The American Legion's 23rd annual convention on Wednesday unanimously adopted a report recommending that Congress lift the geographic limitation which prevents America's drafted troops from being sent outside the western hemisphere.

In effect, the convention placed its stamp of approval on another American Expeditionary Force, if war becomes unavoidable.

The delegates shouted their approval of a report drafted by the legion's national defense committee, headed by Warren Atherton of Stockton, Calif., pledging full support to the administration's defense program.

The resolutions recommended by the committee and adopted by the convention were:

"1. We have confidence in and pledge our support to our government, our president, our war department and our navy department.

"2. Our present national objective is the defeat of Hitler and what he stands for, and all diverting controversies should be subordinated to the main objective. We appeal for unity in its national objective."

Kinzua Reservoir Work To Be Delayed

Will Not Be Started Until After Present U. S. Emergency Is Ended

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18. — Despite rumors to the contrary, there probably will be no work of any sort done on the proposed $35,700,000 Allegheny reservoir near Kinzua until after the present national emergency, it was indicated today by U. S. Army engineers.

Harry E. Anderson senior engineer, U. S. engineers office at Pittsburgh, explained that under the flood control act of 1941 Congress approved the project as a multiple purpose dam, both for flood control and abatement of river pollution, but that no funds of any sort were allocated for the work and that it was highly probable that, in line with President Roosevelt's recent statements, no money would be directed toward the project until after the national emergency.

Anderson said that when work finally gets underway on the proposed project, it will take about three to three and one-half years to complete it, including relocation of a branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, highways and resettlement of two Indian reservations as well as the town of Kinzua itself. Resettlement of several hundred corn planters and Allegheny Indians will be left to the department of the interior when the time comes, Anderson reported.

"Captive Mine" Tieup Continues

Mediation Board Hopes To Get Agreement For Return To Work

HEARINGS UNDER WAY AT CAPITAL

By JACK VINCENT
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Officials of the national defense mediation board today hoped to get a quick "back to work" agreement that would end the strike of more than 43,000 CIO miners in the so-called "captive" coal mines of the nation's largest steel companies.

As the board conferred with company and union heads, it was reported that the steel firms, holding billions of dollars in national defense orders, have started to make inquiries among commercial mines not affected by the strike as to the possibility of obtaining coal from them.

Some defense officials said that unless the strike is settled by Monday the steel mills will be forced to gradually curtail production.

John L. Lewis, president of the CIO's United Mine Workers Union, which called the strike over a demand for union shop, made a definite proposal to reopen the mines during a four-hour hearing by the mediation board yesterday.

Hearings in Second Day
With no agreement reached, the hearings entered their second day today but mediation board officials hoped that the steel companies involved would accept Lewis' proposal or some truce before nightfall.

Lewis' proposal contained what some labor circles described as "unique" provisions. These sources denied that Lewis asked merely for assurances that the steel companies would abide by any recommendations made in the future by the mediation board on the union shop question.

Instead, they reported that Lewis had made a "national defense proposition" under which the union would agree to mine coal needed for defense production as long as the steel companies would guarantee that the coal would not be used for output of steel for civilian uses.

Members of the mediation board refused to confirm or deny the reports. Spokesmen for the steel companies and their subsidiary coal companies involved in the dispute also refused comment. William H. Davis, chairman of the mediation board, had only this to say:

"Mr. Lewis made a proposition at the conference with respect to the resumption of production. The proposition is not to be disclosed." Davis, it was learned, cautioned all those at the conference not to talk about the meeting or Lewis' proposal. The mediation board officials admitted, however, that the main subject of discussion was centered around the hope of obtaining a truce for reopening of the mines while the mediation board takes up the dispute in detail.

Union officials previously had declared that the "union shop" strike in the captive mines was the outgrowth of a deadlock in seven months of negotiations which had started last March 10. These conferences resulted in a nation-wide strike in the soft coal mines. The strike settled after approximately six weeks, led to union contracts which gave the mine workers a union shop and the checkoff in most of the nation's commercial mines.

Union leaders charged that the contracts in the commercial mines generally served as a basis for agreements in the captive mines, and alleged that the steel companies refused to give them recognition. As a result, the present walkout was called Monday.

City Proposes To Improve State Street Hill, Dunlap Says

Streets Director William H. Dunlap today stated that city council intends to put through the improvement of State street hill as soon as frost prevents street work here.

At present there is not sufficient WPA labor for paving streets and eliminating the State street hill curve and cutting back of the embankment to permit widening.

As soon as DuShane street has been paved and frost arrives, WPA workers will be assigned to the State street job, Dunlap asserted.

DARES TO DISCLOSE THE FACTS

-and offers a solemn pledge

Because we believe that you, the consumer, have a right to know, we give you facts that vitally concern yourself, us and every merchant in America.

We, the merchants, are your purchasing agents . . . in business to bring you the things you want and when you want them. Right now you make your selections of the new articles of merchandise and your demand for them is greater than ever because your purchasing power today is greater.

But, we the merchants are beginning to feel the effects of the defense program. Defense priorities, shortage of skilled workers, shortage of materials are taking effect. Our markets are oversold and prices are being quoted as of date of delivery. It is difficult to determine what we will have to pay for merchandise we order today for future delivery.

While we speak specifically for ourselves, we know that this situation confronts every merchant with almost no exceptions.

Our advice to you, customer and friend, is to predetermine your needs for future gift occasions, for future requirements, for Christmas and buy now. We will gladly store away anything you select and hold it until you want it. Pay for it on our easy terms. You don't need cash at all.

WE PROMISE FAITHFULLY that regardless of what it costs to replace any article of merchandise in our stock, no matter what we may have to pay later, we will price that merchandise in accordance with what we paid for it when we purchased it. We shall not profiteer on the vast stock that we had the foresight to buy earlier at low prices.

Chinese War Front Is Huge

Two Million Soldiers Now
Oppose Japs On 2,500-
Mile Front

NINE WAR ZONES ARE CREATED

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

PEIPING, China, Sept. 18.—From the meaningless exchange of a few rifle shots on the night of July 7, 1937, Sino-Japanese hostilities have extended until now according to a Japanese army spokesman, 2,000,000 Chinese troops are fighting an undisclosed number of Japanese over a front 2,500 miles long. Chinese sources report that the Japanese army numbers between one and one and one-half million men on their soil.

That this conflict is a full dress war is indicated in figures furnished by the Japanese spokesman. He detailed the nine war zones established by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. While fighting continues in every one of these regions all the time, the spokesman cited as an instance of what is happening the 2,056 separate armed encounters between Chinese and Japanese forces of the Central China Command in a single month.

In the two months' Japanese campaign directed against the Chinese under General Wei Li-huang in southern Shansi and northern Honan recent concluded, the Japanese claim to have slaughtered 50,000 Chinese troops and to have captured another 25,000. In that fighting the Japanese admit only the killing of but 550 of their own officers and men, although Chungking asserted that thousands of Japanese were killed.

Vastness Of War
The vastness of the war in China aside from its geographical straggling is indicated in the spokesman's explanation that the late spring campaign was staged against General Wei Li-huang's 30 divisions approximating 250,000 Chungking regular troops.

The operations of Japanese troops in China is always the harassing and then fundamentally destroying the enemy by intensive attacks," the spokesman revealed.

"For Chiang Kai-shek there is nothing better than to mass his troops in one, two or three main groups, instead of spreading them out over a front 2,500 miles long. Yet if he tries to narrow the front line by reorganizing troops, then it is obvious that Japanese forces will take advantage of it and cause annihilation of the entire body."

"While so loudly shouting, he is unable to change this apparently disadvantageous strategic formation, and is forced to stick to the weak formation of scattering more than 2,000,000 troops over the vast front," the Japanese spokesman pointed out.

Key To Japanese Strategy
The key to Japanese strategy, according to the spokesman, is to keep on the offensive and to maintain large forces at important points ready to find Chinese groups and deliver smashing onslaughts.

This policy of keeping the offensive, cited by the spokesman, was indicated by him in the simultaneous Japanese attacks on important Chinese forces in Shansi, Honan, in the Yangtze Valley near Ichang, in Fukien Province and in Kwangsi Province. These major battles were being waged by the Japanese at the same time despite the fact that they were separated from each other by over a thousand miles from north to south.

In these simultaneous Japanese offensives, the spokesman stated that as in the case of the strength of the Chinese in the First War Zone in Shansi and Honan, they were fighting a Chinese force of 250,000 troops in the Third War Zone likewise.

No wonder the old South was hospitable. It's easy when free help produces the groceries, does the cooking and makes up the beds.

Testimony Piles Up Against Spy Suspects

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—They look like a cross-section of Americans—a pretty blonde model, a plump middle-aged stenographer, a handful of clerks, tradesmen and business men—but testimony piled up today against these 16 who are alleged to be Nazi spies, testimony that they sought to sell America down the river—for a price.

There is Col. Frederick J. Duquesne with the bearing and mien of a military man at 63. Nothing of the dark-cloaked, furtive spy in his appearance and yet today it was testified that two months before the man-in-the-street suspected the United States would garrison Greenland, Duquesne reported: "I've learned that the United States is going to send 30,000 soldiers and 1,000 officers to occupy Greenland."

If Duquesne knew it, then the German Gestapo knew it, the government reasons and so the lives of thousands of American soldiers and sailors were endangered.

Bit by bit the story comes out—the Nazis have our most secret bomb-sight, they have figures on our defense production, on our employment on everything that we would guard and have tried so hard to guard.

In a federal court room just like this, 13 of these 16 once raised their right hands and pledged their allegiance to the flag of the United States.

Lilly Stein moves nervously in her seat. A pretty girl, Lilly, a model. Men would (and have) talked to her—more than they should have talked.

Eise Weustenfeld, she of the garish hats and poker face, sits stolidly, her eyes fixed on the wall just a little to the left of the flag. Not unattractive, there was a romance in Eise's life—an affair with Hans Ritter—and that is how she came under the control of the Gestapo. Ritter's brother, Dr. Nikolaus Ritter, was head of the Gestapo in Hamburg which directed the movement of the Nazi spiders in America and to reach Eise through Brother Hans was so simple.

Wanted To Be Good American

She wanted to be a good American, Eise says, she wanted so badly to be a good American but there was Hans and there was Dr. Nikolaus prodding him. So Eise forgot that she had renounced her allegiance to foreign potentate or power and pretty soon she was working along with those others the government charges sought to undermine and defeat America on its own soil.

The men glare at William G. Sebald, the chief witness who has involved them so heavily. Sebald, who fought to exhaustion with the German army in the World War and whom the Gestapo thought it could surely tap for an aide. Sebald signed up all right but he did not forget his oath of allegiance. He went to the F. B. I. and so the battle of counter-espionage was begun which resulted in the American counter-espionists coming off considerably better in an exchange of information by short wave radio with the Gestapo.

U.S. manufactured information flowed through the air from the radio station on Long Island which Sebald built with espionage funds—and turned over to the F. B. I. to operate. But it was priceless information which flowed back, information on which the F. B. I. wove the net into which the spy suspects eventually tumbled.

It was Sebald who recounted today how Duquesne, a professional spy from away back, told him long in advance of American occupation of Greenland that the move was to be made and the number of troops involved.

It was Sebald who revealed that the Germans had our bomb sight and how keenly they were interested in what America was going to do with Greenland and Iceland.

New Schedule For Red Cross

Interviews For Service And Peace Time Men Will Occur In Afternoon

WILL ARRANGE FOR EVENING HOURS TOO

Work of the home service department of the Lawrence county chapter has increased to such an extent it is necessary to inaugurate a schedule of hours for interviews.

Miss Fulton, executive secretary of the home service department, will not be at her desk for interviews during the morning hours. From 2:30 to five o'clock each afternoon but Saturday, Miss Fulton will be in the office for anyone desiring to see her on any veteran's work, peacetime man's claims, or problems of the drafted or selective service man.

"It is the policy of the local chapter to make appointments with anyone unable to come in during the day. This new schedule in no way changes this policy. The Red Cross is the only lay organization designated by our government to serve the veteran, peacetime man, drafted man and the selective service man in many ways. The chapter's services to these men are being used as is evident by the units of service rendered. In the past three months Miss Fulton has acted upon 489 cases, performing 2,915 units of service. The chapter has secured monies for veterans and their families in the amount of $2,469.60 over this three-month period. Such service cannot be overlooked. Our chapter ranks among the larger chapters for the efficient work accomplished," stated R. F. Davis, chairman of the chapter, in commenting on this new schedule.

Overcoming The Adversary Highlights On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Saint Michael slaying the demon

"And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb, and because of the word of their testimony; and they loved not their life even unto death."—Rev. 12:11.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 21 is Revelation 12:1-15:4. The Golden Text being Rev. 12:11, "And they overcame him because of the blood of the Lamb, and because of the word of their testimony; and they loved not their life even unto death.")

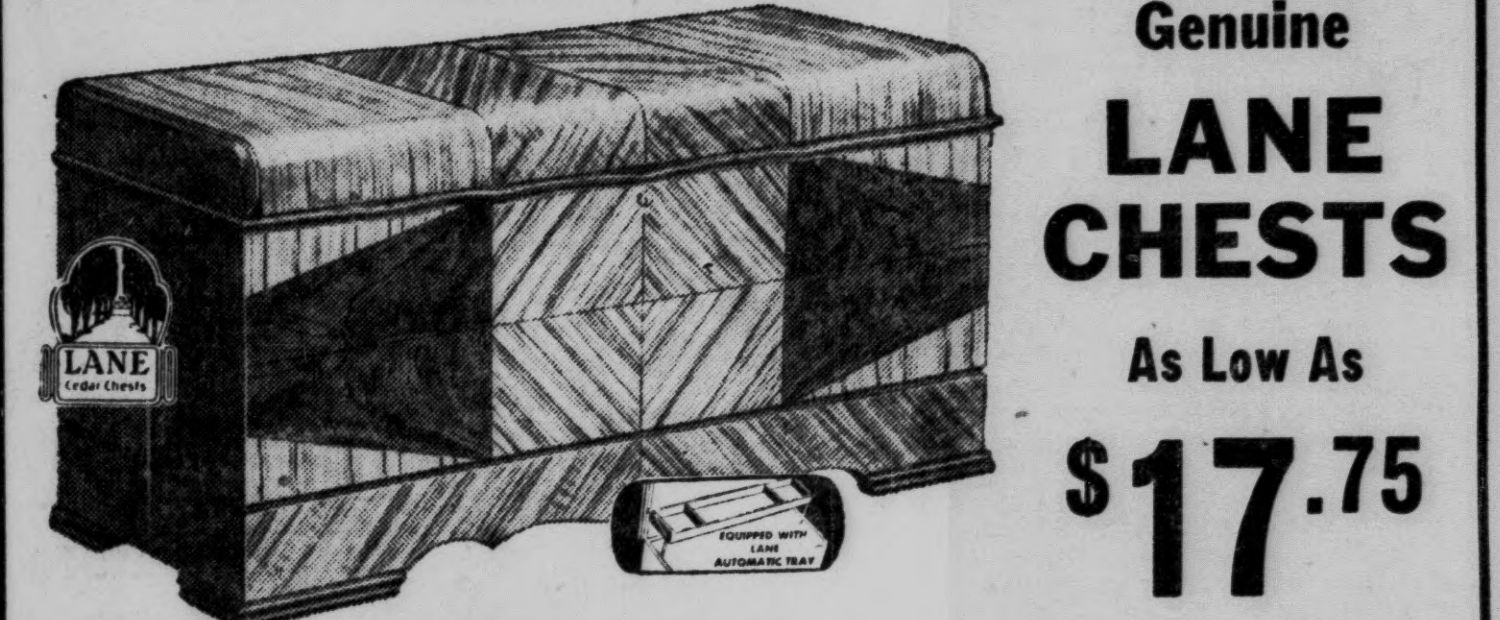

The chapters of Revelation included in the present lesson are the subject of a great deal of discussion and argument among Bible authorities. The whole of Revelation is very dramatic and filled with dire warnings to the wicked, and with promises of heavenly happiness and peace for the righteous.

Chapter 12 relates that a "great wonder appeared in heaven. The woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of 12 stars." The woman was with child and about to give birth. Another wonder was "a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads." The dragon was waiting to snatch and devour the child as soon as it was born, but the babe, a man child, was snatched up into heaven instead, to be with God.

The child was undoubtedly Christ, the woman is thought by most to have been Israel, and the dragon, of course was Satan, who, in the person of Herod, tried to de-

Rejection By Girl Causes Suicide

(International News Service)
UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 18.—Private Howard Hall, 20, of nearby Dunbar, was dead today by his own hand because a girl from the Indiantown Gap area refused his offer of marriage.

Hall, a member of an Anti-Tank Company of the 110th Infantry stationed at the Gap, shot himself in the chest with a 20 gauge shotgun, police said. His body was found in the woods late yesterday by neighbors exercising their dogs.

His mother, Mrs. Maggie Hall, found a note on her dresser in her home which police said read as follows:

"I am going to end it all. I ask a girl up around camp to marry me and she turned me down."

Hall left camp last Monday for a visit home.

The girl's name was unknown to his relatives.

Jewish New Year Will Be Observed

Temple Israel Announces Special Rosh Hashanah Services For Event

On Sunday evening, September 21, Jews throughout the world will begin the celebration of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year. This religious festival marks the beginning of the year 5702 in the Jewish calendar and will be observed with solemn services for one day in the Reform Synagogue and for two days by the orthodox and conservative.

By rabbinic interpretation the New Year commemorates the day of judgment of creation and is a day of judgment upon which all people pass in review before their Creator. Its message stresses the need of serious meditation, of self-searching and of penitence with which the day has become associated. The prayers of the day are filled with this thought as the sound of the Shofar, the ram's horn, calls for remembrance of God's laws and one's obligation to one's fellow-man.

Rosh Hashanah is a day on which family ties are strengthened and friendships renewed. Encompassing the ideas of divine justice and human responsibility, the day begins the Ten Days of Penitence, which culminate with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. During this period, Jews are urged to reflect on the past year, to repent for their sinfulness, and to resolve for nobler conduct in the coming year.

Temple Israel will hold services Sunday evening, the 21st, at eight o'clock and Monday morning at ten o'clock. Rabbi Norman H. Diamond will officiate and preach. The evening sermon is entitled "Judaism an Ideal Faith." The morning sermon, preceded by the Shofar ritual has for its subject, "Reform, an Ideal Judaism." The music will be rendered by a quartet with Mrs. W.

L. Cosel at the organ, and directed by Abe Levine.

Tifereth Israel announces services for Sunday evening at six o'clock Monday morning at seven, Monday afternoon at five, and Tuesday morning at seven. Rabbi Gilbert Elefant will be in charge. At the Sunday service, he will preach on the subject "Faith, A Formidable Fortress." Six trained boys will assist him with the music at this service and also at the Monday and Tuesday morning services. Monday at 10:20, the sermon, preceded by the Shofar ceremony, will be on the subject "A World on Trial." Tuesday morning in the same order and time, the topic to be preached on is "Introspection." Rev. M. Kraines of Canton, Ohio, will conduct the early morning services on Monday and Tuesday.

We've decided not to believe that England is fighting our battle. It seems to have a bad effect on our pride.

New Castle Awaits Farrell Invasion

Game Friday Night At Taggart Stadium Will Be First Meeting In Seven Years

Large Crowd Expected To Fill Stands, Aerial Battle Is Looked For

AFTER a lapse of seven years New Castle and Farrell high school football teams will resume relations on Friday night at Taggart Stadium. In the event of good weather tomorrow evening, a large crowd will be in the stands at 8 o'clock for the kickoff.

A determined New Castle high "Red Hurricane" football machine awaits the invasion of Coach Hank Day and his Steeler band of warriors. Farrell is sending a big powerful team to this city, with Jimmy Basileone the big fullback as the spark-plug, flanked by Captain Jack Rupert Kovac and Day, the latter a son of the Farrell coach.

No Lineup Changes Head Coach Philip H. Bridenbaugh indicated today that he will not make any changes in his starting lineup for Friday night, preferring to string along with the

Dodgers Defeat Pirates 6 To 4

Dodgers Score Five In Ninth For Win, Cards Down Boston Twice

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Their lead cut to one game in the torrid National League pennant race, the Brooklyn Dodgers today met the Pirates in the final game of their series at Pittsburgh, then will rest a day and open that supposedly soft tail-end of their schedule. The championship is about to be won and lost.

The Dodgers play a long series with the Phillies at Philadelphia beginning Saturday, then take on the Braves at Boston and finish up with the Phillies at Ebbets field. The second place cards meantime wind-up their set with the Braves at St. Louis today, then tackle the sometimes tough Chicago Cubs, then the Pirates and the Cubs again.

Tough Row To Hoe The Cards have the toughest row to hoe, but seem equal to at least keeping close to the Dodgers—if their veterans and rookies continue to collaborate as they did yesterday.

In beating the Braves twice, 6 to 1 and 3 to 2, the Cards won behind their freshman, Howard Pollet, and behind Max Lanier with the aid of the aged Edal Crabtree, who homered to tie the score in the first game to set the stage for the winning rally, then homered in the ninth to win the nightcap.

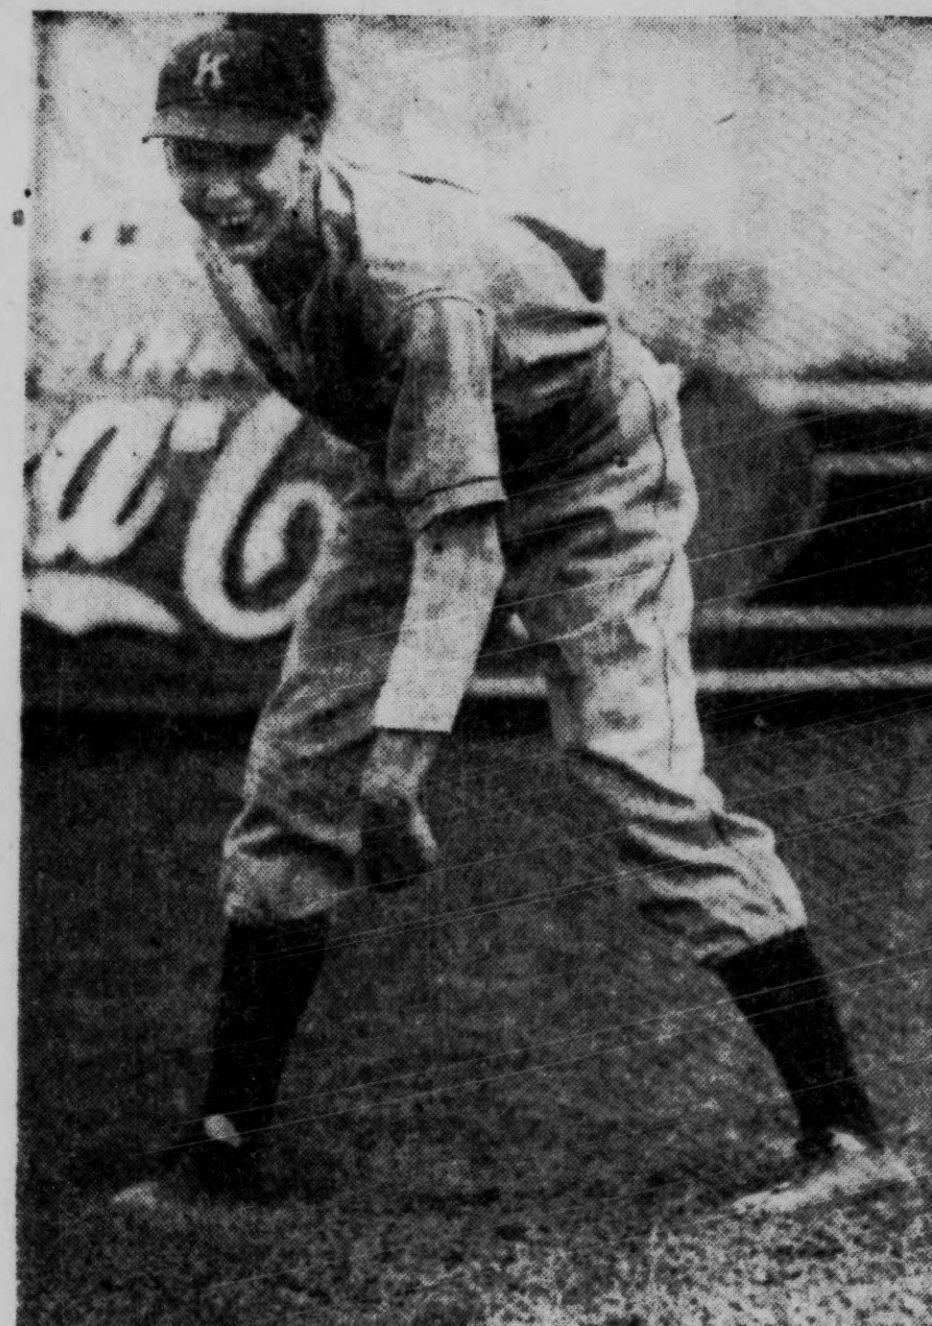

The Dodgers out-lasted the Pirates, 6 to 4, in their game by virtue of a five-run ninth inning.

Reds Win Two The Chicago Cubs downed the New York Giants, 7 to 3, and Cincinnati beat Philadelphia twice, 1 to 0, and 3 to 2. Johnny Vander Meer hurling his sixth shutout and increasing his strikeout total to 195 in the opener as he scored his 15th win against 12 defeats.

The Boston Red Sox won their ninth straight and increased their lead over the Chicago White Sox in the battle for second place behind the New York Yankees to seven games by turning back the Cleveland Indians, 3 to 2.

The Yanks won from the White Sox, 5 to 3, Detroit beat Philadelphia, 3 to 2, and Washington downed St. Louis, 9 to 8, in 10 innings.

Minner Back Home

PAUL "LEFTY" MINNER

Paul "Lefty" Minner, one of the greatest athletes ever developed at New Wilmington high, is back home following a successful baseball season. The towering lefty spent part of the season with Elizabeth, Tennessee, and then was recalled by Knoxville of the Southern Association league.

He made his Southern Association debut recently, pitching sensationally. He earned the plaudits of both the fans and the press. Minner, who is only 17, is regarded as one of the most promising chatters owned by the New York Giants.

West Pittsburg To Play Moose

Pitchers Battle Looms In Championship Series On Sunday

Everything is in readiness at the West Pittsburg baseball field for the largest crowd of the season on this coming Sunday when the "Gas House" gang will battle the Moose club in the first game of a three-game series for the city league championship. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Manager Danny DeGenova and Mike Markey are planning to start their ace, Joe "Screech" Dombeck, on the hill and the Moose will ring in with either Joe Frigione or Monk Rainey, both tough pitchers to beat. Rainey and Frigione are unbeaten so far this season, both sporting fine records. Dombeck has not lost a series game yet, having downed the Lawrence Indies twice.

GENEVA WILL FACE OHIOANS TONIGHT

Two district collegiate gridiron forces open the 1947 season tonight. The clash pairs Geneva College and Youngstown College at Raven stadium, Youngstown, starting at 8:15 o'clock.

FOES NOT STRANGERS

Auburn's 1941 football schedule includes 10 games. Nine of the Tigers' foes were battled during the 1940 semester.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Jack Kelly, national director of civilian relief and who represents a syndicate has offered to buy the Phils. One member of the syndicate resides outside Philadelphia.

Twenty-five Yankees, 25 Brooklyn Dodgers and 23 St. Louisans have been listed as eligible to participate in the coming world series according to announcement by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Indications point to a crowd of thousands at 5 p. m. Thursday when Ellwood City journeys to Hillsville to participate in the second game of a series to decide the Lawrence County Baseball League championship. Hillsville won the first game.

Joe Louis has been notified he will receive his physical examination for the army "around the first week in October" in Chicago. Joe fights Lou Nova in defense of his heavyweight title September 29, in New York.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Sports prattle-prattle:

Persistence may pay dividends for Ben Keller, ex-Ellwood City High star lineman. Gracing the roster of one of the most talented collegiate football squads, the 1938 Ellwood captain has worked like the proverbial Trojan and today looms as one of Duquesne university's varsity members. A typical watch charm guard, Keller seems to have nosed out George Sirochman, a senior gridster.

Should the Lawrence Countians get the starting nod from "Buff" Donelli Saturday against Waynesburg, Keller will be the first localite to leap into the Dukes' varsity club in close to a decade. Nick DeCarbo and "Benny" Ciccone were among the last Lawrence Countians to win varsity berths at the Bluff. Making the grade this season at Duquesne is quite an achievement, considering the calibre of talent on hand.

Touring Mercer county last evening, this operative learned that New Castle High can short circuit Farrell High's attack by halting the guy wearing moleskin No. 82 Jim Basileone, a tough-fibered fullback, is the name. Several Lawrence county athletes will see action tonight in the Geneva-Youngstown college game booked for Rayen stadium. The kick-off time — 8:15 o'clock.

For sometime, Jack Kearns, Jack Dempsey's former manager, has been touting his protégé, "Bill" Poland, as a second Manassa Mauler, a sure shot to win the heavyweight championship. After watching Poland in action against Harry Bobo in Pittsburgh last Monday night, we walked away feeling that Kearns had better visit an optologist and soon. How Poland beat Bobo several months ago is a mystery.

Those officials who worked that Cincy-Brooklyn 17-inning farce couldn't have been favoring the Dodgers could they? From what we've read, it was so dark around Crosley field that a pappy, trying to make sure that his sonny boy was still sitting next to him, succeeded only after lighting a match.

Another report states that the park was shrouded with so much darkness that pick-pockets could have had a holiday. Howie Pollet, the Cardinals' southpaw sensation, reportedly will say "I do" sometime in October. There's one guy that pitchers of the National League champs won't have to worry about in the world series. We refer to Johnny Sturm, the Yankee first baser. Sturm was hitting .244 as of yesterday and had driven in only three dozen runs. Cleveland sheets have stopped sending representatives on the Indians' current road trip.

Local Grid Elevens Hope For Clean Sweep

County Football Contingents Face Imposing List Of Foes This Week-End

BESSEMER OPENS AGAINST HUBBARD

Prepared to shoot the works in the hope of making a clean sweep of week-end grid embroglios, Lawrence county's spirited football squadrons anxiously await the starting whistle.

The parade, as colorful as the rainbow, forms amid the confines of Taggart stadium where undefeated and untied New Castle high meets its biggest test thus far, skipping across the chalk lines with Farrell high, Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Munhall At Ellwood

Slightly more than nine miles away, at Lincoln field, Ellwood City, Munhall high, of Pittsburgh, clashes with Ellwood City high. The Wolverines hoisted the curtain by thumping Union Township while Munhall was on the short end of a 7-0 count in its battle with Duquesne.

The remaining tiff carded for a Lawrence county grounds pairs Bessemer and Hubbard, Ohio, on Bessemer field, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Cementers' squad ranks as one of the greenest in the history of the school. With only a few old hands rehearsing, Coach A. G. Capuzzetti is in a quandary regarding his starting lineup.

Standout Material

Ben List, William A. H. Henry Pishner and Harold Johnson loom as standout wingmen. At tackle, Joe Novad, Lawrence Rich and Rocco Gatto shape up as outstanding material. "Chuck" Donofrio, Carr Kairo and Joe Simari are waging sizzling battles for the guard posts. John Kresovich and Fred List are combating for the center slot.

Coach Capuzzetti has a flock of fair ball luggers. Bob Navarra, Frank Gallo and Rocco Gatto have their eyes on the quarterback station. John Grubisa, Dick Navarra and Frank Gallo are squabbling for the halfback openings and Wilbur Croton and Bush play on Washington field starting at 4:30 o'clock. Tonight's winners meet on Sunday afternoon for the second half championship.

Miller, a 128 pound athlete, has clinched the fullback assignment. At East New Castle, Shenango Township is laboring vigorously for Saturday night's scrap with Sharpesville-high, away from home. The contest shapes up as the Shenango's biggest test of the season.

Same Lineup

Coach Nocera will probably start the same team that topped Evans City last week. Hiler and Hordie figure to serve a second hitch, at end. Adamczyk and Mohrbacker showed up well enough to again receive the nod for the tackle slots and Walters and Thomas are slated to continue at guard. Pruitt asserted himself well and won the center post last week.

Semansky, Moran, Majeski and Stoltica will form Shenango's ball totting quartet. East New Castle fans are banking heavily on Stoltica's accurate toe.

Shenango enters the game as underdogs against one of Mercer county's chief football powers. Union-Township high and Westminster college will "sit out" this week end.

Duquesne Looking For Powerful Team

Coach Buff Donelli Has 31 Veterans Back From His Fine 1940 Squad

Light Schedule Will Keep Dukes From National Recognition This Year

By J. RICHARD SHANER
(International News Service Sports Writer)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 18.—Buff Donelli, the stock little man who directs the football destinies of Duquesne University, admitted rather reluctantly today that things weren't "too bad" at the Hilltop school for the 1941 football campaign.

That summation is what almost anyone would call a masterpiece of conservatism.

Donelli started the pre-season training grind with 44 candidates, and of these 31 were members of the 1940 crew that bowled over seven of their eight opponents. All but 10 won letters.

To break it down even further, 17 players have been on the squad since Donelli took over the coaching reins two years ago and gave the Dukes a new deal in football. Since his first team suffered only one tie and his second only one loss, it can be seen that the curly-haired mentor has a "nucleus" that is used to winning games.

Light Schedule
The Dukes, in reality, have only one major handicap between them and national fame this year, and that is their schedule. It lists eight schools, only one or two of which can be reckoned as serious opposition for the veteran red and blue team.

Thus, Duquesne is in the paradoxical position of having one of the greatest teams in its history and yet will not be able to command full recognition because the caliber of its opponents isn't enough to make the grade.

Donelli has an abundance of good backfield men, all fast and tricky. These include Phil Alwesch, a triple-threat star; Johnny Binotto, a plunging fullback; Joe Chandonic, an elusive sprinter; Bernie Semes, one of the best break-away runners in the east; Harry Connors, and George Gonda, both light and fast, and well-known for their past work.

At Demco at center is rated as one of the best pivot men in the school's history, including all-American Mike Basrak, of a few years back. The rest of the line is solid, with strong replacements available when needed.

"But," says the coach cautiously, "you never can tell what's going to happen."

Two Team Set-Up
Donelli is planning to use a new variation of his two-team set-up this year. In the past, he had one team for the first and third quarters, and a second for the second and fourth periods. Looking ahead to the future, he is going to line up two first string backfields, and then pack his second team with juniors and sophomores so that he won't be left out in the cold next year when graduation takes his 17 veteran seniors.

Despite the heat of the past few days, he has been working his charges twice daily, rounding them out for the campaign. "You have to work hard to get any place," he explained.

The schedule ("—indicates night games): Sept. 20—Waynesburg; Sept. 26—Niagara U.; Oct. 10—Manhattan; Oct. 17—St. Vincent; Oct. 25—Marquette; Nov. 1—Villanova; Nov. 9—St. Mary's; Nov. 15—Mississippi State.

Credits Given For Night School Work

High School Office Will Evaluate Credits Of Prospective Students

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 18.—Is a high school diploma necessary for success? A good question, one which might be discussed at great length without reaching a definite conclusion, yet, the fact remains that many persons do try to get one. People who were forced out of school by circumstances or by poor judgment realize the value of the diploma and many wish for the opportunity to qualify even though it might be late in life.

The Ellwood City high school is accredited by the Pennsylvania State Department of Public Instruction and, therefore, permitted to grant full high school credit for all work completed. This fact permits students who lack credits for graduation to complete their education in night school. Many students have taken advantage of this feature.

The high school office is always willing to evaluate the credits of prospective students and to advise them about additional work toward a diploma. Anyone interested in this phase of the night school program is invited to call at the high school office for information.

Full high school credit will be given for the satisfactory completion of the required work in shorthand, typewriting, bookkeeping, English, sewing, blueprint reading, mechanical drawing, gymnasium, and all shop work. The night school organization operating for the benefit of all students might have a solution to your problem.

You can register for these courses tonight and tomorrow night in the Lincoln Building from 7:00 to 9:00 p. m. A deposit of $2.50 payable at the time of registration must be made by each student. This deposit is returned at the completion of the course providing 75 per cent of the classes have been attended.

The single ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. F. H. Daubenspeck.

For her wedding, the bride chose a becoming soldier blue two piece crepe dress with navy blue accessories. A corsage of red roses completed her ensemble. There were no attendants.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left on a trip to Washington, D. C., and upon their return will reside at 503 Lawrence avenue.

Whittaker Funeral Saturday Afternoon

Funeral Services For Prominent Pioneer Ellwood Resident To Be Held Here

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 18.—With a life span of 84 years and 7 days, Henry Marshall Whittaker, prominent pioneer resident, passed away early Wednesday morning in a Baltimore, Md., hospital.

Since 1937, he had resided in Baltimore with his daughter, Mrs. C. M. Bennett. In May, he suffered a light stroke and had been ill since that time. His condition became serious on Sunday, and he was removed to a Baltimore hospital.

A son of the late Joseph and Sarah Beverlin Whittaker, he was born in Hollidaysburg, Pa., and his childhood was spent there and at Johnstown. On September 23, 1884, he was married to Miss Freda E. Ferner, of Stogstown, who preceded him in death.

In the following year, 1885, he moved to Beaver Falls where he was employed as superintendent of the Mat Works, then owned and operated by the late H. W. Hartman, founder of Ellwood City.

In 1889, he came to Ellwood City with the founder and helped to lay out the town and oversee the new village. In 1891, he moved to this city, and resided here until 1937 when he went to Baltimore.

Before his retirement in 1932, he was affiliated with the National Tube company.

Mr. Whittaker's religious affiliation was with the First Methodist church and he was a church officer when the first Methodist church was erected at the corner of Fourth street and Park avenue. He was a member of the Board of Education when the central school building was located where the city building now stands. For many years, he was a member of the city health board.

He was actively associated with the early religious, civic and industrial affairs of the community, and always maintained his keen interest in the industrial growth of the city.

He lived and enjoyed a varied and useful life, and the memory of this venerable resident, who gave freely of his time, ability, and substance to promote the growth of the city he loved, is one that will long be cherished by the entire community.

Survivors are: one son, Dr. A. E. Whittaker, of Zellenople; one daughter, Mrs. C. M. Bennett, of Baltimore; two grandchildren, Arthur Vance and Margaret Lou Whittaker, of Ellwood City; one brother, Elmer Whittaker, and two sisters, Misses Ellen and Marcia Whittaker, all of New Castle. One son, Watters Whittaker, of Ellwood, died several years ago.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the late home, 309 Spring avenue, Ellwood City. Rev. T. H. Carson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. Lutz of Vandergrift, former pastor of the Methodist church, will officiate. Interment will be made in Locust Grove cemetery. The body arrived here today and friends are invited to call at the residence.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEALL

This is a strange world . . . and one of the strangest things to understand is Mother Nature . . . how she does business. If you were on a quiz program and asked to name one of the rarest wild flowers that grows in North America, what would the answer be? . . . Fringed Gentian, a bloom that has become so rare that Nature lovers have hunted it in vain. The habitat of this flower with the fringe around its petals is in low moist meadows. And one of the flowers that grows in the Fringed Gentian . . . N. R. Castillo and Owen P. Fox found a small clump of these flowers and after watching them year after year have seen these blooms produce thirty fine large clumps. The Gentian blooms in September through October and the local spot where these flowers are found is just four miles from the heart of the city . . . and not in a place where you would expect to find a rare flower.

Gene Stratton Porter in her day, spent many years seeking this flower before she was awarded with its find . . . Local nature lovers of years ago by knew it but had lost contact with its habitat. Five years ago after many miles of tramping woods, and exploring meadows in search of the Fringed Gentian . . . N. R. Castillo and Owen P. Fox found a small clump of these flowers and after watching them year after year have seen these blooms produce thirty fine large clumps. The Gentian blooms in September through October and the local spot where these flowers are found is just four miles from the heart of the city . . . and not in a place where you would expect to find a rare flower.

Poems were once written about this lovely flower . . . and if we have good luck, we hope to bring you a few stanzas tomorrow. The civilized world is a grand place in which to live . . . it's too bad some are forced to live under dictators and miss the freedom of the fields.

RUSSIA MOVES TO ADD TO RED ARMY RESERVES

tory on the lower part of the blood-soaked central front was followed by revelation of Russian plans to build up Red army reserves.

Russians were informed by the official Moscow radio that all Soviet men aged from 16 to 50 will undergo a compulsory course of military training outside their regular working hours.

The training program was decided upon by the state defense committee to prepare trained reserves for the Red army.

The regular midnight Red army communiques related that "our troops fought stubbornly along the entire length of the front" and added:

"During Sept. 15, 78 German planes were destroyed in air battles and during raids on enemy airdromes. We lost 25 planes."

(Editor's Note: The official German news agency DNB said that the Luftwaffe wreaked havoc with Soviet shipping in the Black Sea of Azov and Lake Ladoga in a series of new assaults.)

Denounce Nazi Claims
The supplementary Russian military bulletin denounced German claims that Nazi forces had captured Bryansk as "pure fantasy."

German claims to have captured 53,000 prisoners around Lake Ilmen were termed "nonsense."

"On the front," the Russian bulletin said, "heavy fighting has been going on for a month, in the course of which our forces lost about 30,000 men."

The bulletin also denied claims that the Germans captured 320 tanks and 695 guns. It said:

"Actually we lost 42 guns. A conservative estimate of German losses on this front is 45,000 or 50,000 men killed, wounded or taken prisoner."

A Moscow radio broadcast stated that on an unnamed front the Red army hurled German units back across a river (possibly the Dnieper river on the southern sector) in a five-day infantry and tank battle in which both sides were supported by aircraft.

Heavy Nazi Losses
The Germans, said the announcer, lost 4,000 troops by drowning, 238 tanks, 50 planes, 486 trucks, 145 guns, 39 machine guns, 27 trench mortars and 95,000 shells.

The 17th German Panzer Division alone was declared to have lost more than 1,600 men killed and wounded.

Late Soviet announcements said nothing regarding the fighting around the approaches to Leningrad on the northern front beyond the official statement that fighting raged on all sectors. It was reported, however, that fierce fighting was in progress below Leningrad as well as around Odessa at the opposite end of the great battle line.

(Editor's Note: A British radio broadcast heard by CBS stated: "Many of the hundreds of aircraft Britain is sending to Russia have already arrived at the battle zone. The wing of the Royal Air Force which has been cooperating with the Russian airmen on the northern (Leningrad) part of the front already has been in contact with the enemy.")

FALLS FROM PORCH
Shirley Cox, aged 4 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cox, of New Wilmington, was brought to the Jameson Memorial hospital at noon today suffering with fractures of both bones of the right arm, received when she fell from the porch at her home.

U. S. factories produce more than 72 million gross of buttons annually, according to the census. Pearl or shell buttons lead with more than 20 million gross and synthetic-resin buttons are next with more than 15 million gross. Manufacture of buttons is a 30 million dollar annual business. There are more than 300 button factories and they employ more than 12,000.

Police Guard Power Plants In Kansas City

(International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 18.—Kansas City's two power plants and water works were under 24-hour police guard today to prevent any recurrence of the five-hour "black-out" of the city yesterday by a strike of 300 AFL employees of the Kansas City Power and Light Co.

"There will be no repeat performance of yesterday's occurrence," promised Police Chief Harold Anderson. He guaranteed that non-strikers will be given full police protection at their jobs.

Despite the resumption of power service, the city's largest user of electric power, the Sheffield Steel Co., closed down last night, and officials asserted the plant would not reopen until all interruptions of service were eliminated.

The company employs 2,800 persons and holds large defense contracts.

The strike was called without notice Tuesday midnight when the power employees left their jobs in protest against a decision by the national mediation board that it had no jurisdiction in a dispute between the AFL Brotherhood of Electric Workers and an independent union of utility employees. The AFL had sought bargaining power for the independents.

Both the state and local governments took prompt action to end the blackout, which shut off all lights to thousands of homes and to hospitals and industrial plants. Transportation was halted by the power stoppage and hundreds of industrial establishments were thrown out of gear.

Mayor John B. Gage, terming the walkout an "outlaw strike," immediately ordered police protection for non-strikers, and Governor Forrest C. Donnell ordered mobilization of the two Kansas City home guard battalions.

Six men were arrested on charges growing out of the strike. Albert F. Wright, representative of the AFL union, was charged with trespassing on power company property, and five of the strikers were arrested on charges of malicious destruction.

SECRETARY KNOX SAYS U. S. NAVY NOW CONVOYING

forces in Congress on the convoy issue, a fight which began when the lend-lease bill was first thrust before Congress and which has continued for months.

Sen. McCarran (D) Nev., assailing the move, recalled that President Roosevelt once said at a press conference that "convoy means war."

In testimony on the lend-lease bill last winter, said that convoys would be an act of war. At the time, however, he referred to direct convoys to Great Britain.

May Hasten Showdown
Convoys, some observers believed, may hasten the expected showdown on repeal of the neutrality act, which forbids American-flag merchant ships from carrying war goods direct to Britain.

"Of course, I am not surprised because convoying has been going on a long time, in my opinion," said McCarran. "This is contrary to the neutrality act and statements made during consideration of the lend-lease bill."

Sen. Pepper (D) Fla., characterized the move as a logical and necessary step.

"Undoubtedly the country has approved the policy announced by President Roosevelt of protecting freedom of the seas," said Pepper. "The action outlined by Secretary Knox is the only way to assure getting goods to the nations that are fighting Hitler."

Assume Terrible Responsibility
"It was stated in the lend-lease act that no power was conferred in the bill to convoy," said Sen. Wiley (R) Wis. "It seems to me that if the executive and subordinate officers are doing this they are assuming a terrible responsibility."

Knox also disclosed that certain American harbor entrances are being equipped with underwater nets and mines in defense against submarines.

The navy chief said he had no "firm opinion" on the advisability of arming American merchant vessels.

The navy, he said, is not certain that an Axis raider is operated in the South Pacific, as reported for several days, but he added "we think so." A Dutch merchantman is long overdue at the Panama Canal, he said.

Asked if the public would be informed if the navy catches a raider, he tersely replied:

"We will tell the world—of course."

Good fortune can give free lands the help of Russia, but it can't give statesmen enough sense to take full advantage of it.

INDIANATOWN GAP, Pa., Sept. 18.—Emphasis was placed on reconnaissance and patrol work today as soldiers of the 28th Division hastened preparations for wide scale maneuvers in North Carolina next month.

Name Committee For Reapportionment Plan

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Sept. 18.—A 10-member legislative committee was appointed Wednesday by Speaker of the House Elmer Kilroy and Senate President Pro Tem Charles H. Ealy to adopt a congressional reapportionment plan.

If the committee, composed equally of Republican and Democratic senators and assemblymen representing all portions of the state, proves successful in its endeavors, Gov. Arthur H. James has promised to call a special session of the legislature to enact its plan into law. If unable to reach an agreement, all of Pennsylvania's 32 congressmen will have to be elected by the state as a whole at the 1942 elections.

Those appointed, five by the Democratic House speaker and five by the Republican Senate leader, were:

Representatives Leo A. Achtermann (D) Monroe, House majority leader, who was named chairman of the House group; James H. Tate (D) Philadelphia; William L. Shaffer (D) Allegheny; Charles H. Brunner Jr. (R) Montgomery, and W. W. Muir (R) Warren. Tate and Shaffer served on the House apportionment committee during the last regular session.

Senators M. Harvey Taylor (R) Dauphin, temporary chairman of the Senate group; A. H. Letzler (R) Clearfield; John G. Snowden (R) Lycoming; John H. Dent (D) Westmoreland; and Henry E. Lanius (D) York. Taylor served on the Senate apportionment committee during the last session.

Appointment of the special committee was authorized by the legislature, shortly before it adjourned on July 18 after more than six months of deliberation, unable to agree upon a plan for redistricting the state. Due to the 1940 census, Pennsylvania's congressional delegation was reduced from 34 to 33.

Both Kilroy and Achtermann expressed the belief that an agreement would be reached, but Senator Ealy had no comment to make.

"I'm pretty near sure that there will be some agreement," said Kilroy. "It would be very unfair to the rural districts, because they would lose their representation. Both parties would be very selfish if they didn't agree. Otherwise, the big cities would control the entire delegation."

"I think we should be able to arrive at some amicable agreement," commented Achtermann.

The committee will meet at its pleasure, and will notify Kilroy and Ealy whenever an agreement is reached. Achtermann said no meeting would be held before the week after next, at the very earliest.

Three Hundred Freshmen Enroll At Grove City

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Sept. 18.—Approximately 300 freshmen enrolled at Grove City college this year, only slightly below last year's all-time peak of 312. Expected shrinkage from military and naval service, and employment, has reduced the total enrollment less than 50, and it is expected to be nearly 900 when latecomers arrive.

The drop in enrollment is expected to be less than 5 per cent, as compared with the general average in Pennsylvania predicted to be 15 per cent.

A feature of the freshman enrollment is the larger number of women students, there being about 170 to 130 men. In other years, men have outnumbered women students.

For the first time in his 25 years as president of the college, Dr. Weir C. Ketter was not present for the opening of the semester. He is taking a needed rest, and expects to return to his office soon.

FIREMEN CALLED.

Firemen from the New Wilmington department answered an alarm Tuesday afternoon and extinguished a slight blaze which had developed in a truck near the corner of Neshannock avenue and New Castle street.

AROUND CITY HALL

Chief of Police Willis G. McMullen and Detective Chief R. A. Criswell were busy Tuesday and Wednesday in Lawrence County court in connection with prosecutions brought by the police department. . . . City of New Castle police have a good supply of gas weapons, manual signal lights, high-powered rifles, riot guns, a police broadcasting system, fingerprint and photographic bureau, lifeboat, and three cruiser cars, one of which is new. . . . Every person arrested for a serious offense against law and order is fingerprinted and photographed, or "mugged" as police claim. . . . It will not be long until the Fraternal Order of Police arranges for their annual Thanksgiving night ball. . . . Plans for the proposed elimination of the State Street hill curve have been prepared for some time and it is hoped by motorists that the project is put through before ice on the hill causes wrecks and probably death.

Sanitary police no longer are required to quarantine patients suffering from measles, hence there has been a dropping off of some part of duties there. However, this is the time of year when the sanitary "cops" seek garbage-throws; that species which wraps garbage into packages then hurl them from automobiles. . . . Mayor Charles B. Mayne is somewhat vexed. There is to be a "bearing down" in enforcement of motor vehicle laws here. Speeding may result in the loss of a driver's card for 90 days. . . . Where formerly one officer, Thomas Jones, acted as traffic commissioner, there now are three, namely, Lieutenants Kennedy, Jones and Steiner. Each gets a "whack" at serving eight hours on daytime duty. . . . The detective bureau was established during the first mayoralty regime of Mayor Charles B. Mayne and the up-to-date methods were installed by John P. Haven, then police chief, now a successful contractor.

Excavation preliminary to paving in DuShane street between Lutton and Junior High street will start within a week according to City Engineer G. R. Throop. The work will not begin until the North Jefferson street paving job is almost completed. At present one-half of the latter job has been finished. There will be an eight-foot space on both sides of the 30 foot cartway for a grass plot Throop said he does not know when improving State street hill will get underway. The city has proposed that improvement for a long time, but practically nothing has been done, despite serious motor vehicle accidents each winter. The city has the plans to cut back the bank and widen the cartway which is a state route. The highway department may put down the paving. It is recognized that accidents can be minimized if the improvement is put through before snow and ice covers the steep curve.

Mayor Charles B. Mayne today asserted that a person who fails to honor a parking violation tag, which actually is a summons to appear at police headquarters, can expect no exemption in traffic court. Further, he added that twin parking is all right to him and police must stop it immediately. The mayor said he sees violations not only during the day but also at night and is determined to enforce motor laws. Speeding comes within this category and now, with children trudging to and from school, no speeder can expect to endanger lives and escape a fine, it captured.

Canadian crop apples, pears and grapes are estimated at less than last year, the Department of Commerce says.
